ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.)
— Call it Penn State's Valley, but according to Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences Dean Robert Steele, it's "Sam's Valley as well."

Steele pointed to the work of a pioneer in promoting the importance of Pennsylvania agriculture to the world, a man who served as the secretary of agriculture during the Ridge and Schweiker administrations — Sam Hayes.

For his work, and in Hayes' honor, the site of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's

Manheim Ag Teacher Wins National Award

NICKI LEFEVER
Special Correspondent

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Deb Seibert is one teacher who doesn't get summers off and in addition to her weekly classes she works evenings and weekends.

Because of her dedication, Seibert is one of six ag teachers named Outstanding Ag Ed High School Teacher by the National Association of Agricultural Education earlier this month. She will fly to Florida in December to accept the award.

"It is nice to be recognized for positive things," she said. "Especially since my job helps the community."

Farmer, Businessman Team Up For Biodiesel Demo At Ag Progress

DAVE LEFEVER

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Matt Steiman was working on his own biodiesel project at Wilson College this spring when he heard that a Pennsylvania business group was exploring the possibility of building a commercial-scale biodiesel facility in the area.

So Steiman contacted Mike Gerhart, a consultant with the Regional Economic Development District Initiative (REDDI) based in Harrisburg. REDDI is looking into how a facility making biodiesel from soybeans might help boost agriculture and the overall economy in the mid-state.

Steiman said Gerhart encouraged him to demonstrate his biodiesel-making apparatus at Ag Progress Days this week. Steiman just recently began producing biodiesel fuel from waste fryer oil in the 50-gallon tank equipped with a circulating pump that he and an engineer friend recently constructed.

As a result, Ag Progress visitors had the chance to not only learn about biodiesel fuel, but watch it being produced from soybean oil.

According to Steiman, making biodiesel from either soybean or

Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steers sold 2.00-3.00 higher, with the majority 3.00 higher. Prices were a full 2.00-3.00 higher when compared to last Thursday's run as well. You could tell it was going to be an active day when the first steer in the ring weighed over 1500 lbs, and sold for 84.25; after that most people that were sitting close to the sale ring were in search of a safety harness. Bidding was very active throughout the day as a good selection of steers kept buyers interested. The farmer/feeders that held their ground over the past few weeks as prices were beginning to slide sure reaped the benefit of putting the extra finish on them as Prime steers once again topped at nearly 87.00 on Thursday; with kosher buyers thrilled to have the good quality steers to fill their loads. Holstein steers sold firm to 2.00 higher as packer buyers went in search of the spotted stock to cheapen up their colored loads a little. A light test of slaughter heifers sold 1.00-2.00 higher as well. Fleisher (65-75 percent lean) slaughter cows sold mostly steady, instances firmer. Boning cows sold firm to 1.00 higher. Lean slaughter cow sold weak to 2.00 lower as buyer attendance was lighter than normal. Slaughter bulls sold steady to 2.00 higher when compared to the very light Tuesday run; with bull prices trading mostly steady with last Thursday. The supply included 468 head of slaughter steers, 459 slaughter cows, 60 slaughter heifers, 71 slaughter bulls, with 162 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1180-1465 lbs 83.00-86.85, 1510 lb single 84.25, couple Yield Grade 5 78.50-80.50. Calves: Compared to Tuesday, slaughter calves sold near steady. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold sharply lower as late week buyer interest was very light. The 30.00-40.00 decrease came after Number 1 bulls sold as high as 87.00 on Tuesday. However, prices are fully steady with last Thursday's run. A very light test of Holstein heifers sold with a weaker undertone. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture graded 463 head of bull calves for the graded sale, with an estimated 90 percent of the graded run going back to feed.

Slaughter Calves: Standard and Utility 50-120 lbs 20.00-30.00, weaker 11.00-20.00.

Calves Going Into Special-fed Veal Barns: Graded Number One Holstein bull calves 120-125 lbs 105.00; 90-120 lbs 122.00-145.00.

- MARKET HOG

New Holland Hog Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
August 18, 2003

Report Supplied By USDA

Receipts: 552 Last Week: 816 Last Year: 1150.

Compared to last Monday, barrows and gilts sold mostly steady on a lighter run. Prices for the straight hogs seem to be on a plateau as the bulk of U.S. 1's and 2's have been bringing in the low 40.00 to high 30.00 range the past few months. The demand for the heavy sows remains very good, as bids are as high as 40.00. All hogs are sold by the hundred weights.

Percent Lean Weight Price 49-54 220-270 lbs 41.75-43.75, few fancier 44.00-46.25 package 280 lbs 41.00 45-50 220-270 lbs 40.00-42.25 270-300 lbs 38.25-40.00 40-45 220-270 lbs 37.25-39.35

New Holland Slaughter Pig Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
August 20, 2003

Report Supplied By USDA

SLAUGHTER PIGS: Receipts: 320; Last Week: 402; Year Ago: 320.

Compared to last week US1-2 21-26 lb slaughter pigs sold 20.00-40.00 lower. All other weights within the U.S. 1-2, and U.S. 2 supply were not well tested. However, there was definitely a higher undertone noted on the Number 2 pigs, as well as in the no-grade and as-is supplies. Bidding activity was relatively good, although buyer attendance was light. All pigs continue to go to slaughter as mandated. Pigs consigned to the Wednesday sale are graded on arrival, and sold on their in-weights. Prices are quoted per hundred weight.

Head Weight Price U.S. 1-2 40 21-26 lbs 90.00-105.00; 16 35 lbs 112.00 fancy; 30 35-40 lbs 62.00-70.00

U.S. 2 7 20 lbs 90.00; 3 26 lbs 50.00 black; 30 32-36 lbs 52.00-55.00; 18 41-42 lbs 50.00-57.00; 2 52 lbs 97.00; 3 58 lbs 70.00

New York Broilers/Fryers ATLANTA, GA.

August 19, 2003

Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity on ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers was only fair at best as dealers were cautious and maintained balanced floor stocks. Offerings of the 2.5 pound birds were balanced to adequate. However, the heavier weights were available and discounted to entice interest. Retail and distributive movement was no better than fair. The market tone was barely steady on the 3 pound and larger birds, but steady on the smaller sizes.

National Broiler Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.

August 20, 2003

Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment was mostly steady except for the Northeast which was mixed depending on product size. Retail demand was light to moderate with limited features. Food service was slow to fairly good, best into fast food for promotions. Supplies were usually sufficient; however, in the East, smaller sizes were adequate to close, but heavier weights were available and often discounted. In the Midwest following the blackout, shortages were noted due to delivery problems and schedules were irregular, but unsafe water was now confirmed potable. In the parts structure, trading was light to no better than fair, with the exception of wings which continued to have good movement and well cleared supplies. All other items were increasingly available. In production areas, live supplies were moderate. Weights were desirable to heavy, but mostly desirable.

Your power is OFF... and your generator DIDN'T start. Now your 40,000 Birds or 2,000 Pigs are DEAD.

Top 5 reasons why your generator may overheat and fail this summer...

- Low Coolant level — engine will not cool properly if coolant is below the core.
- Dirty radiator fins — must be free of dirt, dust, feathers, paper, or debris.
- Sufficient air intake — motorized shutters are strongly recommended.
- Improper coolant mix — 50/50 antifreeze and water will ensure max cooling from coolant.
- Faulty exhaust shutters — must open freely with no flow obstructions.

Here are the 5 things we'll do to help you prevent this disaster...

- We'll perform our "Generator Readiness Evaluation" worth $175 for FREE.*
- We'll detect your potential problems quickly with our trained technician team.
- We'll dispatch our technician with a service van stocked with the most popular service parts
- We'll recommend a "Preventative Maintenance Program" that best suits your needs
- We'll respond to emergencies you have 24 hours a day, 7 days a week

CUSHIONED EGGElectronic Drives

The innovative, electronically-controlled drive system enables eggs to be transported on a smooth, continuous speed on an endless conveyor with drive units located intermittently up to 150' apart.

Optimum Rod Spacing

Space between each cushioned rod is the key to egg separation and preventing smaller eggs from slipping through the conveyor while allowing all debris to be sifted out.

Design Flexibility

The unique "Cushioned Rod" egg conveyor enables you to custom design a system that gently transports eggs up, down, around corners and in a continuous straight line without transfer, and even declines to match processing equipment.

Custom Corners

The unique radial corner system in the Farmer Automatic rod conveyor can be custom designed to fit 15° through 90° turns.

THE OLD FARMER'S
THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

AUGUST 25-31, 2003
NEW MOON, AUGUST 27

'BYE, GEORGE!

On August 29, 1782 the British vessel Royal George unexpectedly sank at her mooring in Portsmouth Harbor, England. The ship was being careened for repairs, a common system of heeling a ship wholly or partly on its side in order to clean, paint, or repair the portions of the hull below the water-line near the keel. In fact, the word careen comes from the Latin (carina) for keel although it is often confused with and used colloquially for career, as in "the car careened off down the street." In any case, we'd guess that the careening of the Royal George and subsequent sorry sinking, was not a good career move for anyone involved.

Ralph Waldo Emerson American essayist (1803-1882)

TIP OF THE WEEK
Float cabbage or broccoli worms out by soaking heads in a gallon of water with a teaspoon of salt.

BLUEBERRY PIE

dough for a 2-crust pie
1 quart blueberries, rinsed and drained
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons tapioca
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon lemon juice dash salt
1 tablespoon butter

Ingredients, fill crust, dot with butter, and cover with top crust. Press edges of crust together and cut slits in top. Bake for 10 minutes, then reduce the heat to 350°F and bake for another 45 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

Preheat oven to 450°F. Roll out pastry and fit bottom crust into pie plate. Mix next seven

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If woolly fleeces deck the heavenly way, no rain will mar a summer's day.

The last Friday of the month foretells the weather for the next month.

Perception Is Everything?

It's an increasingly crowded world.

In February this year I spoke to a traveler from California (originally from Pennsylvania) who attended the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association dinner. The visitor spoke about trying to feel at home in the "crowded Northeast."

In this crowded part of the country, with an increasing population of nonfarmers, more than ever the general public is setting all the rules.

Last week I attended a meeting about land use and nearby property values sponsored by Penn State at Berks Heim near Leesport. About three dozen real estate agents, township and borough planners, and planning commission staff attended.

They heard the results of a June 2003 Penn State study (funded by the Northeast Regional Center for Rural Development and Citizens For Pennsylvania's Future) on the impact of open space and potential local "disamenities" on residential property values.

To make a long story short, "disamenities" refers to those facilities that, in the public house-buying perspective, actually can decrease the value of a residential unit if they are located close by.

For instance, the study pointed out that a house within two miles of a landfill can have a substantial "disruption" to the quality of life of people living in houses. The same holds true if a large-scale animal facility is located within a mile.

Dr. Charles Abdalla, associate professor, ag and environmental economics at Penn State, noted that a location near a landfill decreases the value of a home property by 12.4 percent.

A real stunner, according to Abdalla: a house located within a mile of a large-scale animal facility, at 200 animal equivalent units, decreases the value of the property by 6.4 percent! Fortunately for the homeowners and producers, large-scale animal units aren't as bad as landfills. The study looked at 3,342 houses within a two-mile radius of a landfill, and the average decrease in property value was 2.6 percent, or about $2,442, with a total impact of $8.1 million. Still, that's significant!

(Types of large-scale animal houses effect prices differently. Abdalla pointed out that poultry was worse than swine, worse than cows, but the actual difference was not "statistically significant.")

More work needs to be done to look at the mechanics of these relationships. Analyses must be done on measuring why the differences in house values take place, especially since there weren't any major statistical differences in those who live near a sewage sludge treatment facility.

Now Is The Time

By Leon Ressler

Lancaster County Extension Director

To Lighten Your Load

Farming has always been a demanding profession with many challenges. The last two years, however, have been more difficult than many because of weather extremes combined with low commodity prices. The ongoing strain of unpaid bills piling up and the frustration of uncooperative weather can really drain a person's resolve.

On Sept. 4-5 the Lancaster County extension office will conduct several meetings to give some guidance in dealing with creditors and the accumulated stress of recent months. These half-day sessions will be repeated in four locations in Lancaster County to make it convenient to attend.

The first meeting is scheduled at the Hoffman Building in Quarryville from 9:30 a.m.-noon on Thursday, Sept. 4. That afternoon the same program will be conducted from 1 p.m.-3:30 p.m. at the Salisbury Township office located at the east end of the village of White Horse. On Friday morning, Sept. 5, the meeting will be conducted in Manheim at the Lancaster DHIA lab. The final repeat of the program will be held at the Martindale Fire Company from 1 p.m.-3:30 p.m. that day.

Since these challenges create a burden for all members of a farm family, both husbands and wives are encouraged to attend. The topics will include "Farm Stress and Family Safety," which will be presented by Jane Boyd, an agricultural nurse from the University of Rochester. Boyd has presented programs on farm safety in Lancaster County schools and is familiar with our farms. The topic "Talking With Your Creditors" will be presented by a representative from our Lancaster County lending institutions. This will be very valuable information as the ag economy continues to work through the recent downturn.

It will be especially valuable for both husbands and wives to attend because the last session will be offered separately for men and women and will deal with the different issues they face. The women's session is entitled "Dealing With Family and Children During Tough Times" and will be presented by Janneke Van Buskemp of Life Management Associates of Lancaster. The men's session is entitled "Farm Stress and How To Lighten the Burden" and will be presented by Dan Hess also of Life Management Associates.

There is no cost to attend the meetings because of the generous sponsorship of Lancaster County lenders. For more information, contact the Lancaster County extension office at (717) 394-6851. Registration is not required but would be appreciated to assist those who will be setting up for the meetings. Take a few hours out of your schedule to attend this helpful event before the busy fall harvest season starts in earnest.

To Continue Monitoring Tomatoes For Late Blight

Last week, late blight on tomatoes had been confirmed in Lancaster, Erie, and Crawford counties and in southwestern New Jersey and southeastern Michigan.

Lancaster horticulture agent Tim Elkner reports that since then, this potentially devastating disease has been confirmed in Centre County as well as central New York and northeast Maryland.

Warm, dry weather will reduce the threat of this disease, but any return to a cool, wet weather pattern will again increase the risk of late blight spreading to tomato and potato fields. Continue to monitor your fields and adjust your spray schedule based on the weather conditions and the threat of the disease in your area.

Since last week, a special local needs label (Section 24c) has been obtained in Pennsylvania for Curzate 60 DF fungicide (DuPont) on tomatoes. Curzate fits into the group of fungicides that have some systemic activity and should be used in rotation with other systemic fungicides if you have late blight in your field or it is confirmed within 150 miles. You will need a copy of the special label in your possession at the time of application. This label can be obtained at the Lancaster extension office Website (<http://lancaster.extension.psu.edu/>) or from your chemical supplier.

If your field becomes heavily infected with late blight (more than 10 percent of the leaves killed and/or 5-10 percent of the green fruit are affected), it could be too late to save the crop and you should consider destroying it. However, if you have crop insurance, be sure to consult with your adjuster before destroying any fields/crops.

More information related to this disease and control options are posted at the Leola and Weaverland produce auctions. Control recommendations have also been posted at the Lancaster County Website. Go to <http://lancaster.extension.psu.edu/> and down in the left corner click on "Late Blight Alert" under the Current Issues section. You can also get more information by contacting your local extension office or by calling the Lancaster Extension Office at (717) 394-6851. Your extension office can also provide you with control information for potatoes.

Quote Of The Week:

"Failure can be divided into two those who thought and never did and those who did and never thought."

— Reverend W. A. Nance

BY NO HUMAN HAND

Background Scripture:

Daniel 2.

Devotional Reading:

Revelation 21:1-7.

To appreciate the Book of Daniel, you need to understand it as a class of ancient literature known as "apocalyptic."

Two books of the Bible are apocalyptic, Daniel and Revelation, but there are also apocalyptic passages in Isaiah 6; Ezekiel 1,2 and 3; Joel 2 and 3; and Mark 13. These passages are ecstatic writings and use allegory — narrative with a symbolic rather than literal meaning.

Apocalyptic literature was popular in the ancient world and often presented a cosmic drama of two worlds, the seen and unseen, in conflict. It also made symbolic use of numbers and beasts. This literature usually appeared in times of crisis as a kind of code that would be understood by those who needed to understand.

The Book of Daniel has as its backdrop the four and a half centuries of history that followed the death of Alexander the Great and the breakup of his empire into smaller kingdoms under his lieutenants, but particularly the reign of Antiochus Epiphanes (175-164 B.C.), whose two ruling ambitions were to dominate Egypt and make the culture of the middle East Greek Hellenistic. The Jews stood in the way of his ambitions geographically and culturally. Many of the Jews bitterly resisted Hellenization. Those that did not resist were thrown into conflict with those who did.

To Encourage Faith

On Dec. 25, 168 B.C., Antiochus Epiphanes responded by desecrating the Jerusalem temple with Greek idols. Under the leadership of the Maccabees, the Jews revolted against him, defeated his forces and on Dec. 25, 165 B.C., the temple was cleansed and rededicated. As you can see, these were turbulent times and the book of Daniel was written to encourage the faith of the Jews.

However, the writer of Daniel did not use the actual historical situation of his times. Instead he set the conflict centuries earlier when the Jews were captives in Babylon. So, he is using the story of Daniel as an allegory of the situation in the days of Antiochus Epiphanes. Thus the four beasts in the king's dream represent the Babylonians, Median, Persian and Greek empires in succession, and the great stone represents the kingdom of God that shall "break in pieces all these kingdoms and bring them to an end, and it shall stand forever..." (v. 44,45).

So his readers are to take heart, first, in the promise that God would bring his judgment upon each kingdom in its turn. At any particular moment in world history we may be confronted by a powerful nation that threatens to sweep all before it. That is what the world thought about Napoleon, Hitler, Stalin, and many others. At the time it does seem as if nothing can stop them. But, as Daniel told King Nebuchadnezzar, "there is a God in heaven" (v. 28). Actually, not only is there a God "in heaven," but also a God working in and through history. In his hands are the rise and fall of empires.

Intoxicated By Power

Nebuchadnezzar is an autocratic tyrant who followed and preceded other such tyrants. He is a brutal, uncaring man who can say to his advisors "... if you do not make known to me the dream and its interpretation, you shall be torn limb from limb, and you houses (homes and families) shall be laid in ruins" (v. 5). He is intoxicated with his power, but his own dream tells him that God in his own good time will pull down his kingdom: "... a stone was cut out by no human hand, and it smote the image on its feet of iron and clay, and broke them in pieces; then the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver and the gold, all together were broken in pieces, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors. ... But the stone that struck the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth" (vs. 34,35).

The past, present, and future belong to this God, and "the God of Heaven will set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, nor shall its sovereignty be left to another people. It shall break in pieces all these kingdoms and bring them to an end, and it shall stand forever" (v. 44).

"WAFFLE SLAT"
Syrri-Con Corporation

"We would use slats again if doing it all over!"

Harold Keeney; David, Nancy & Mark Wolfskill

"The answer to the most common question is 'No, there is no build-up.'"

Our original plan was to install scrapers. But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds. Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years.

The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner. Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria.

-David Wolfskill

Aug. 15, 2003 CALIFORNIA REPORTS 'OVERBLOWN'

- July milk production up 0.6 percent.
- California milk production down 0.6 percent.
- 20-state yield per cow above a year ago.

Speculative reports that California milk production was severely damaged by a heat wave may have been a bit "overblown."

The milk production report issued today by USDA had milk production for 20 select states up 0.6 percent relative to a year ago. In California, milk production was down just 18 million pounds from a year ago, or 0.6 percent. Cow numbers for the month grew 2,000 head.

But no worries. If California needs more milk, they should give Wisconsin a ring. Milk production in that state grew 54 million pounds, more than enough to cover any losses from California. And that wasn't the only state to show production growth. Idaho milk production in July was up 8 percent and New Mexico production was up 3.5 percent.

Reports that milk production in the Golden State was drying up and cows were dropping appear to be incorrect. Of course the reporting could also be wrong. USDA has another month in which to change their mind and make corrections. So I could be eating my words next month (it's not the first time).

My sense is that the "market" overreacted to the news that California was in trouble. After all, we have a modern multistate market where milk can travel thousands of miles if need be. So we should be able to shift milk around from one state to another, thus maintaining cheese production and back to school fluid needs.

It is unclear how the markets will react to the Milk Production

Report. They could assume that the worse is yet to come. Some may look to the August report to get the full story. Others may think, as I did, that the market overreacted. That could bring down lofty futures prices for September though December a quarter or more. Either way, those producers who locked in future milk prices will benefit by maintaining solid prices for the fall months.

Prices remained firm this week at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Block cheese prices were fixed at $1.60 per pound, whereas barrel cheese prices lost a half a penny, dropping to $1.5750 per pound. Grade AA butter prices lost ground this week, falling from $1.1825 per pound on Monday, Aug. 11 to $1.16 per pound by Aug. 15.

Dairy Market News reported this week that the heat wave in Europe is maintaining temperatures of 90-100 degrees Fahrenheit. However, the impact on the milk supply appears to be slight. In New Zealand and Australia, the new milk production season is getting under way. New Zealand is projecting a 1-2 percent increase in milk production, whereas Australia is projecting a 0-1 percent increase.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Pasture Perfect® Dealer of the Week: Bob Boyce

This week Ampac Seed Company and Rohrer Seeds recognize Bob Boyce, founder and owner of Lil' Ponderosa Enterprises of Carlisle, PA. Bob is adamant that the family farm can survive. He believes that reducing the cost of inputs while maximizing production and efficiency is key to successful farming. He advocates Managed Intensive Grazing (MIG), the rotational method of pasture management. He has adopted a holistic approach to managing soil, plants, and animals. Bob uses the Pasture Perfect® seed blends. The improved varieties developed through years of research, selection, and breeding provide the best seed on the market today. He recommends the Mid-Atlantic Grazer Mix for beef and dairy farmers who are initiating MIG. It can be used for pasture, haylage, or dry hay.

Ag Interests Protected In Rendell's State Budget Proposals

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Wednesday marked the birth of the eight-hour workday in 1862, noted one Penn State official. And one state official wants to bring all of Pennsylvania back to work with several agricultural economic initiatives that could revitalize the profitability of farming.

Pennsylvania Gov. Ed Rendell noted that through the efforts of his administration, working with Penn State, Pennsylvania "can help grow our economy," he said to hundreds of guests during the Government/Industry Day Luncheon at Ag Progress Days.

Despite dealing with the headaches of a $2.5 billion state budget deficit, Rendell noted that the "interests of agriculture have truly been protected."

State efforts include a fundamental effort to "re-engage Pennsylvania's young people in the business of agriculture," he said.

Rendell pointed to the work of the state's biggest FFA school, W.B. Saul near Philadelphia, and how those kids, "urban kids born in the toughest ghettos," are "on fire" with their interest in agriculture.

"Pennsylvania has no economy without ag," said Rendell. Agriculture contributes $43 billion into the state's economy and remains the largest industry. The second largest is tourism.

For the youth, the state FFA has been granted a $150,000 grant legislative line item.

Another critical item is the "Plan for Pennsylvania" espoused by the administration, opening up ag business loans for farmers. The first one, at $200,000, will be going to a farm in Lancaster County.

The manufacturing equipment loan fund, open to businesses throughout the state, was closed to farmers at one time. But now it is open and allows "farmers to be more productive and add new technology," Rendell said.

Appropriations for crop insurance and farmland preservation are preserved, despite the budget problems. In June, 29 new farms totaling 2,700 acres were preserved. That brings the total to 2,195 farms, at more than a quarter million acres since the program began about 14 years ago.

The CREP program has been increased to $410 million to farmers, to provide a new crop, said Rendell — "habitat on land." That includes $326 million in federal and $84 million in state funds. CREP is open to 23 counties in the Susquehanna River Valley.

The program, noted Rendell, reduces 14.5 million tons of erosion to the Chesapeake Bay, protecting more than 200,000 acres of good farmland.

The final step, noted Rendell, is coming up with the solution to the high cost of property taxes and the low performance of rural public schools.

There has been no progress in the percentage of Pennsylvania students who read proficiently, even though other programs, such as science and math, have shown improvement.

"Pennsylvania is not producing a qualified workforce... in any endeavor," said Rendell. The state share of education dropped from 55 percent in the early 1980s to 34 percent, after the repeal of laws that provided more state share of the responsibility.

"Local property taxes go up and up and up and it's got to stop," he said. "Far too many farmers are land-rich and income-poor."

Rendell believes the new budget can be ironed out within the first couple of weeks in September.

Gov. Ed Rendell speaks to the media before the start of the luncheon Wednesday.

Farm Walk Set For Covered Bridge Produce

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Cover crops, purchasing seeds and planning for the following year and observing crop conditions are the topics that will be covered during a farm walk at Covered Bridge Produce, Oley, on August 28, 6:30 p.m. to dark.

Covered Bridge Produce is a farm that is organically certified. Markets are diversified and include a CSA (Community Supported Agriculture) market, farmer markets and wholesale accounts. Joseph Griffin, farm manager, and Bob Jack, grower, will be leading the walk, according to Mena Hautau, extension agent.

The walk is part of a series, "Organic Agriculture in Southeast Pennsylvania" organized through Penn State Cooperative Extension. The tour will be take place rain or shine. Wear appropriate footwear. Participants may bring a bag lunch if coming directly from work. There is no charge and no preregistration required.

For more information and directions to the farm, contact Mena Hautau, Penn State Cooperative Extension-Berks County, phone: 610/378-1327, fax: 610/378-7961, email: Berk-sExt@psu.edu new Livestock Evaluation Center was dedicated to Hayes Wednesday afternoon, to a full house of more than 700 at the facility near the Ag Progress Days annual event in Rockspring.

Steele said, "I couldn't be more pleased to have my friend's name, Sam, on this building."

When Hayes spoke, receiving two standing ovations, Hayes recalled the history of the construction and the many associations involved in its progress.

The livestock evaluation center replaces the old and outdated Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center on Fox Hollow Road in State College.

Hayes said the first facility, with a capacity of 17,497 square feet, was "not a 21st Century facility."

"For the livestock industry to be profitable, to get those cuts of meat from the animals on test, we needed something other than the one livestock evaluation center we had."

Hayes noted that the idea for the new center, with an address in Pennsylvania Furnace, was not just some idea "concocted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture" (PDA) at a cost of $6.4 million. Though the new facility measures more than 178,000 square feet, about 10 times the capacity of the old facility, the design of the Samuel Hayes Livestock Facility included the input of Penn State and representatives from the sheep, beef, hog, and goat industries.

The design of the new facility is all "21st century," noted Hayes. "It is the biggest and best livestock evaluation center in America. It is 10 times larger and 10 times better in its functionality."

He spoke about a contractor's daughter, at 13 years of age, who laid the last concrete by hand — representing the involvement of the state's youth at the basic level. And when he spoke, there was an edge in his voice, after thanking all the agencies and industry involved, about his love for agriculture.

Joining him in the dedication was Dennis Wolff, secretary of agriculture. The Hayes facility, noted Wolff, is all about "economic development, and is central to economic development in Pennsylvania."

Wolff said that it takes vision, planning, funding, and implementation," congratulating Hayes on his accomplishment.

Several representatives of the various industries also spoke.

Annette Lovell, Paoli, spoke about the recent Performance Ram and Ewe Invitational Sale on Aug. 2 at the site, which included a sale of 53 rams representing seven breeds, and more than 40 ewes. She said the Hayes facility is something we can be "really proud of."

Joe McMullen, Wakefield, represented the beef industry. He congratulated the state's Department of General Services and the design team for coming up with a place "that is animal friendly."

Dave Reinecker, York Springs, represented the swine industry, who noted how honored he was to be a part of the dedication.

During Ag Progress, visitors were transported by bus all three days to tour the new Livestock Evaluation Center.

Dr. Elizabeth Santini, veterinarian with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, spoke on Tuesday about the new facility, measuring 178,000 square feet at a cost to taxpayers of $6.5 million.

The facility will look into just how good male livestock are genetically, she noted.

"How good are their genetics?" she said. "Can they grow fast, make muscle, and produce babies?"

The facility will examine the genetic traits of bulls, boars, rams, and bucks. Each species will be examined in their own groups on the same environment and feed.

After the on-site test, animals are offered for sale during select times of the year.

The multipurpose facility construction began in spring 2002 and the finishing touches are still being applied.

Santini noted there are several factors the facility takes into account: feed efficiency, reproduction capabilities, and muscle lean-to-fat ratio.

A goat was recently sold that netted about $900, noted Santini, during a goat test sale in early August. Average prices paid at the sale ranged from $300-$400.

The Sales Arena has a seating capacity of 700. The facility is continually lit by halogen bulbs, providing light for a workstation area, bedding areas, and test areas.

Included in the design is a western-style exercise lot that is gravity self-cleaning. The sides are ridged to allow manure to flow away into a collection area, where it is hauled to a holding facility. A challenge could lie in where the concrete meets the gravel.

The exercise lot readily manages water flow, even during heavy rains. Rainwater is directed to several lined drainage basins around the facility. Included is a quarantine area to restrict movement of animals to enhance biosecurity.

According to site director Glenn Eberly, the bull test facility is ten times larger than the former site, the meat animal evaluation center, at University Park. The new site can hold about 150 bulls or 300 steers.

The bull-testing program will house 15 bulls in each of five pens in a 112-day official feeding test program.

Information to consignors and buyers includes breeder's name and address, birth weight, 205-day adjusted weaning weight, 365-day adjusting yearling weight, 112-day average daily gain, on-test feed efficiency, off-test weight, farm score, off-test ultrasonic estimates of fat thickness and ribeye area, weight per day of age, yearling scrotal circumference, yearling pelvic area, and expected progeny differences for growth and maternal traits.

The bull test sale is conducted the same week as the Beef Expo in late March each year.

The ram testing program and sale includes breeds divided into several groups, with several other factors that must be met.

Rams are tested and fed in a similar environment, and the top 75 percent within any breed and/or breed group will sell.

Information includes the same as the bull group, including sire and dam, birth type, fat thickness, shoulder height, loin eye area, and scrotal circumference.

The swine testing program consignments includes boars born during the month of January. The test program houses four pigs (barrows or gilts) in each of 20 pens in a feeding test program that lasts about 90 days. At the conclusion of test, consignors can select two of the four pigs for exhibition at the state Farm Show. They are judged on on-foot competition and are then tested for carcass measurements. Premiums are earned for on-foot placement and percent acceptable lean. And overall champion and Reserves are selected on the basis of lean gain per day.

The test facility is staffed seven days a week and is open to the public Monday through Friday from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. For more information about the program, contact Glenn Eberly, Director, Pennsylvania Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 1494 West Pine Grove Road, Pennsylvania Furnace, PA 16865, (717) 783-5222 or (814) 238-2527.

Farm Bureau Calls For Limits On 'Clean And Green' Land Values

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau last week called for passage of legislation that would limit property valuation benefits solely to land for agricultural use under the Commonwealth's "Clean and Green" program. Portions of land that fall under "forest reserve" and "agricultural reserve" categories are receiving the property valuation benefits originally sought by farmers for production agriculture.

Testifying before the Pennsylvania House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee in support of House Bill 657, Farm Bureau said the extension of property valuation benefits to land not actively used for agriculture misdirects the program and fuels opposition to the Clean and Green Act itself by some local taxing jurisdictions.

House Bill 657 would remove tax benefits to the "base acre" portion of forest reserve and agriculture reserve lands. Amendments to the Clean and Green Act in 1998 required base acres of all properties enrolled in the program to receive the tax benefit. A "base acre" is the portion of property that surrounds the home, farm buildings and other buildings on land enrolled for Clean and Green valuation. The bill would retain the benefit for properties used in agricultural production.

Including base acres of forest reserve and agricultural reserve lands provides needless benefits for "min-estates" and other properties, said John J. Bell, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Governmental Affairs Counsel, who presented the organization's testimony.

State lawmakers were also cautioned by Farm Bureau against making comprehensive changes to the Clean and Green Act.

A manure odor reduction system has been placed and works efficiently at the new livestock evaluation center.

Elizabethtown Fair Kicks Off 30th Year With Fair Queen Contest

CHARLENE M. SHUPP
Special Correspondent
ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — The Elizabethtown Fair began with the first of many highly competitive contests as four young ladies competed for the title of 2003 Elizabethtown Fair Queen during the opening ceremonies.

Sarah Graybill of Mount Joy, Chelsea Grove of Marietta, Alisha Liles of Elizabethtown, and Kate Sweigart of Mount Joy competed to become the fair's spokesperson for the next year.

Each contestant presented a speech about "What my fair means to me" and answered an impromptu question during the competition.

While the judges retired to select the 2003 queen, Elizabethtown Fair President Kenneth Myer led the opening ceremonies recognizing the volunteer effort that went into organizing the fair and thanking the fair board and volunteers for the continued help.

Several state and local officials were on hand congratulating the Elizabethtown Fair on another successful year, including Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Dennis Wolff, Congressman Joseph Pitts, and Pennsylvania Sen. David Brightbill.

Before the coronation, 2002 Elizabethtown Fair Queen Kathy Musser reflected on her reign and the countless memorable experiences she had.

In her farewell address, Kathy noted the past year as a "dream come true" and recapped her activities during her reign. To conclude her reign and reflect her passion for teaching, Kathy read a story called, "A County Fair" by Laura Ingles Wilder.

After concluding her farewell address, Kathy Musser placed the crown on Kate Sweigart to serve as the 2003 queen. Upon receiving her new sash and crown, Sweigart said, "Wow. I feel like am in a fairy tale. It is an honor and I am proud to represent the fair." This high school senior also thanked her family and friends for their support during the competition.

Kate is the daughter of Kenton and Sue Sweigart and a student at Donegal High School. She participates in several school activities such as student council and class president. Outside of school, Kate is a 4-H member, who has competed on the local and state level with her sewing projects and in the fashion competitions. Her future plans include attending college to study family and consumer science and hopes to someday become a teacher.

Sweigart has participated in several fair activities over the past few years entering cooking and baking projects and loves to spend every moment she can at the fair.

When asked about why she decided to compete for the fair queen title, Kate notes, "I enjoyed watching the competition and I wanted to give back to the community." Kate also noted during the competition that the Elizabethtown Fair serves as a vehicle to "bring diverse people and the community together," showing the way that those in town and outside of town come together to make the fair happen.

Sweigart will be joined in promoting the Elizabethtown Fair by Sarah Graybill also of Mount Joy, Lancaster County. Sarah is the daughter of Dale and Joyce Graybill of Mount Joy and is a 2003 graduate of Lancaster Mennonite High School. This fall, she will attend Penn State University majoring in business administration.

The Elizabethtown Fair will continue until Aug. 23 near the Elizabethtown Area High School. After the conclusion of the fair, both Kate and Sarah will continue to represent the Elizabethtown Fair at community activities and school promotions. Each girl also received a scholarship to assist them with their higher education.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
August 20, 2003

Report Supplied by USDA

SPOT PRICES OF CLASS II CREAM, dollars per lb butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.6146-1.8135. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.6380-1.8252 mostly 1.7082-1.8135.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .8500-.9300. Class III, spot prices: 1.0300-1.1500.

SPOTS SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This Week: In 194, Out 0; Last Week In 75, Out 0; Last Year In 68, Out 0. SOUTHEAST STATES: This Week: In 10, Out 0; Last Week In 0, Out 0; Last Year In 0, Out 0.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

During July, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 12.35 billion pounds, up 0.6% from July 2002. The following are the July-to-July changes for selected states: Texas -2.2%, Vermont -2.2%, New York -2.4%, Pennsylvania -3.4%, Florida -7.5%, Kentucky -8.7% and Virginia -9.2%.

With the record high temperatures in most of the West during much of July, many contacts were surprised to see milk output grow instead of shrink. All reporting Eastern states saw milk output decline along seasonal patterns. Currently, milk output continues to decline in the Southeast where high temperatures and humidity are taking their toll on cows. Contacts state that off-farm milk haulers' continue to come to plants with lighter loads. This is at a time when the demand for milk is increasing. Southeastern (other than Florida) had a very tight market this week.

ducers' needs jumped significantly and suppliers report difficulty finding enough trucks. The need for milk is up because of school openings and contacts state that it is a very hectic time for milk procurers.

In the Northeast, hot weather continued into this week and plant receipts are often lower. Last week's power outage had both immediate and longer term impacts on the market. The power outage caused farm pick-up, over-the-road hauling, processing, and retailing problems. Bottlers had milk returned, processors couldn't operate, which forced them to turn milk back to supplying plants that also had no power, and trucks couldn't get fueled. Fortunately, the outage was relatively short lived and bottlers and processors were back on line the next day. Some plants did have generators and continued to operate throughout the ordeal. Retailers lost both bottled inventories as well as frozen dairy products. The demand for milk is very good as school lunch pipelines get filled.

In the Southeast, Florida's needs jumped quite a bit and some milk was purchased and imported into other Southeastern states. Because of the widespread drought and heat, this year's filling of the pipeline is much more hectic than it was a year ago when milk was in heavier supply.

The condensed skim markets are little changed. The fluid cream market remains firm. Offerings are tight and demand is holding at very good levels. Despite the firm market, spot prices are often lower due to the four-plus cent drop in last week's CME butter average.

The power outage had a big impact on the fluid cream market in that shipping temperatures were not always as low as some would like and there was always power to load or unload trucks that were available. Ice cream production is about steady, but the loss of product at retail centers this week.

Milk production in the 20 major states during July totaled 12.4 billion pounds, up 0.6 percent from July 2002, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS).

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.

Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending Aug. 15 — Total Receipts: 545,500; last week 349,300; last year 475,200. Direct: 76,800; last week 81,600; last year 81,600. Video/Internet: 224,700; last week 4,000; last year 166,100.

Auctions: 244,000, last week 263,700; last year 227,500. This week's reported auction volume included 35 percent over 600 lbs and 43 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, feeder cattle prices in the major trading areas were uneven as yearling supplies continued to tighten and calves made up a larger percentage of receipts. Trends ranged from 2.00 lower to 2.00 higher with weakness most evident early in the week and in the Southern Plains.

Tuesdays crop production report estimated this years corn production at 10.1 billion bushels and an estimated yield per acre of 139.9 bushels; if realized, both would be record highs. Late-week auctions and direct sales received a shot in the arm from this news, especially in the Northern Plains where demand was good all week. Nebraska and Iowa feedlots have been able to maintain their 80.00 market and last years drought and herd reduction in the Dakotas has made feeder cattle supplies extremely tight. Northern buyers have been venturing down-south to fill orders, but strings of top-quality yearlings are becoming scarce. Southeastern calf markets were weak to 3.00 lower as droves of 3 and 4 weight calves fell on light demand. The winter wheat regions of Oklahoma and Texas have been far too dry to get excited about this falls wheat pasture and there is not enough summer grass left to warm-up a load of shipped-ins.

Calf prices in many areas have been about the same per pound as the much heavier yearling feeders. One exception is the Mid-Atlantic region, where moisture has been ample and the corn crop is showing an 89 percent improvement over last years. This week's graded feeder cattle auction in Winchester, Virginia featured 1500 head and Number 1 500-600 lb steer calves sold from 100.00-111.50. The best demand has been for cattle that qualify for the Virginia Quality Assured program. This guarantees the buyer that he/she is getting weaned, vaccinated, and source verified livestock. The purple tagged cattle even have to be the product of a sire with minimum EPD requirements. Many of these well-muscled and moderate framed steers will be fed in Pennsylvania, where 500 pounders aren't stockers and Prime beef is not a fluke of nature.

Marketing were 4 percent higher than 2002; both of these were well within most guesses. However, July feedlot placements were up 8 percent and beyond expectations which could weigh on next weeks feeder market.

Most lots of 40-60 weight pigs have a sliding value from the negotiated weight basis which is calculated on the actual average weight of the load plus or minus .30-.40 per pound. Some early weaned lots have a slide of .50-1.00 per pound. Early weaned pigs are under 19 days old. Estimated lean value is projected to use slaughter weights with normal confinement feeding conditions. Vaccination and health program values are not included but health status should be disclosed.

Wolff Announces Increase In Crop Insurance Protection

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Dennis C. Wolff announced last week that Pennsylvania's AGR-Lite crop insurance protection program's maximum policy size was raised to $250,000, from the original $100,000 ceiling. This increase will extend protection eligibility for producers with annual gross revenues up to $500,000.

The Department proposed that AGR-Lite be available for use in 11 other targeted northeastern states.

In addition to Pennsylvania, the expanded program will reach a number of counties in Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, and Rhode Island, and selected counties in West Virginia, New York, and Maryland, as approved by the Risk Management Agency.

Pennsylvania has taken a leadership role in coordinating the development of new crop insurance products, such as AGR-Lite, for the northeast.

"The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture designed a crop insurance product that increases the availability of risk management tools for small, diversified farms and has been beneficial to many Pennsylvania producers," said Risk Management Agency Administrator Ross Davidson, Jr.

"Pennsylvania farmers are faced with increasing market and weather-related risks, and need access to a risk-management program that reflects production aspects unique to Pennsylvania and the northeast," Secretary Wolff said. "AGR-Lite reflects our agriculture's unique diversity and has the potential of providing meaningful crop insurance protection for virtually all types of crops, animal production, and byproducts (including milk) for the vast majority of Pennsylvania farmers."

For additional information regarding the Pennsylvania Crop Insurance Assistance Program, contact the Department of Agriculture at (717) 787-2376 or visit the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: "agriculture."

Dr. Richard Ready, assistant professor at Penn State, concludes that the "very best" homeowner scenario, he noted, would be a house located within a quarter of a mile of "forests and farms — and past the quarter mile, the office, grocery store, and your Best Buy."

One caveat: values of homes actually decreased near ag preserve areas. Why? Ready believes it's because those types of farms are more intensely managed, and that intensive management may be perturbing to homeowners. Too much equipment operating on a Sunday afternoon, perhaps?

One of the most stunning conclusions of the study in Berks County: people would rather have strip malls (or "industrial use facilities") than condominiums, townhouses, or trailer parks near their homes. And many developers continue to build lots of condominiums, townhouses, and trailer parks on once desirable farmland! So who does this kind of development favor, other than a developer's pocketbook?

Does the study paint a pretty picture for agriculture? The fact that people desire farms and forests near their homes is good — but they don't want large-scale facilities. Once again, people love the Norman Rockwell "look" of the small family farm, and that is about as much farming as some will tolerate. Sad but true, they don't want productive, profitable, family agriculture they just want open space and they want "someone else" (perhaps other more wealthy landowners?) to pay for it.

More information about the study is available at <http://landuse.aers.psu.edu>.

Six Breeds Shown At Rockingham County Fair Dairy Show

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent
HARRISONBURG, Va. — The Rockingham Co. Fair dairy show on Tuesday, Aug. 12, saw exhibitors showing six breeds of dairy animals — Jersey, Red and White, Ayrshire (one entry), Brown Swiss, Guernsey, and Holstein.

Matt Hutchisons Val-Inn Dynamic Suzie, a four-year-old Holstein, born Nov. 20, 1998 was named the junior show Holstein grand champion by the judge, Justin Potts from Purcellville.

Hutchison, 20, said: "The reason I brought her, she looks good and has more dairyness and a good udder."

In Port Republic on Valley Inn Farm, he helps his parents, Jack and Bonnie Hutchison operate a 40-50 head milking herd dairy.

Monta Vista Durham Franny, a three-year-old, was named Holstein open show grand champion and also had the best udder. The open show reserve grand champion was Ken-Wan BS Pretty Deena, exhibited by Andrew Hutchison.

Jennings Gap Dairy, Churchville, was the Holstein breed premier exhibitor and premier breeder.

In the Brown Swiss breed, Dublin Hills DM Skye, a four-year-old exhibited by Rachel Smith, 14, was named the grand champion and had the best udder. Skye was also the 2002 Brown Swiss grand champion and while still a heifer, also won her class.

From McGaheysville, Smith says showing animals at the fair has taught her patience because they don't always behave. Her parents are Jeff and Norma Smith.

Andreas Paulsons aged cow, Oehda Prophet Princess, was named reserve grand champion.

The Brown Swiss premier breeder and premier exhibitor honors went to the Paulson Family of Port Republic.

The Red and White breed grand champion was Burkdale Kylee-Red, a three-year-old cow born July 31, 2000, shown by Frannie Crawford and bred by Leon Rhodes. Kylee was also grand champion of the open show.

From McGaheysville, Crawford who is 15, said she was complimented by the judge on how clean she kept her cow.

The Red and White reserve grand champion in the junior show was Heiz-Acres Ranger Dusk-Red, a senior two-year-old exhibited by Rosemary Liskey. In the open show the reserve grand champion was Ringo of Jennings Gap, an aged cow exhibited by Frank Swope.

The Red and White premier breeder and premier exhibitor went to Red and White Farm, the Lester and Carol Cobb Family, Dayton.

Kelsey Morriss Shireland Heligo Heidi, born Oct. 15, 1999 was the Ayrshire breed grand champion in both the junior and open shows and had the best udder. Morris also showed the reserve grand champion with Shireland Heligo Hunter, a dry cow born Sept. 30, 1998.

Kelsey Morris was the breeder of both animals and premier exhibitor and premier breeder.

The Jersey breed open show grand champion was Arco Barber Candy Lady, a three-year-old cow exhibited by Zachary Waldron. The breeder was C. L. Collins.

Reserve grand champion was CTH Magic B Sweetpea, a junior two-year-old shown by Honey Hill Jerseys. Honey Hill Jerseys also was premier exhibitor and premier breeder of the Jersey breed.

In the Guernsey breed fewer than five animals were shown and therefore, no grand or reserve grand champions were named.

Potts, in 2002 was graduated with a degree in dairy science from Virginia Tech. He had participated in Dairy Judging Teams A and B.

Central Susquehanna Beef Producers To Meet

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — Tom Cotner will host a Central Susquehanna Valley Beef Producers meeting on his farm Thursday evening, Aug. 28.

Cotner feeds between 100 and 175 heifers in his feedlot, growing his own forages on 75 acres of land. Crops include corn silage, oats seeded with alfalfa, and alfalfa.

The program includes a discussion of on-farm animal composting. Craig Williams, Penn State extension agent from Tioga County, will discuss how beef producers can implement simple, cost-effective methods to dispose of dead animals through composting.

Scott Wright of the Pennsylvania

Beef Council will also give an update on the beef quality assurance (BQA) program. BQA-certified producers can use the session to remain certified.

The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m.

To reach the Cotner farm, take

Who's The Fairest Of The Fair?

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Who is the fairest of them all at Elizabethtown Fair?

That was a tough decision for judges Thursday evening as they debated the merits of supreme champions from seven species: goat, sheep, rabbit, beef, dairy feeder calf, goat, and cow.

First the supreme market champions entered the ring. And later the supreme non-selling champions assembled for the ultimatum.

"We are judging for the ideal — not pitting them against each other," said Frank Stoltzfus, fair director.

Judges Todd Biddle, Jessica Welch, and Blaine Brown conferred in both contests and decided that the fairest of the fair were sheep in both cases.

Joelyn Donough, Manheim, clinched top placing among the supreme sale animals, and Stephanie Kauffman's, Landisville, bred and owned lamb in the supreme breeding competition.

Joelyn's success began earlier in the day when she showed both the grand champion sale and non-sale lambs. Both were bred and owned on the family farm. Her parents are Ed and LuRue Donough, Manheim. Joelyn's non-sale lamb was selected supreme from 130 competing lambs. That entitled Joelyn to compete for the final supreme animal over all, which culminated in victory.

When Joelyn Donough's bred and owned lamb was bestowed the honor among the sale species, Stephanie Kauffman didn't think her lamb had a chance to win in the market category.

"I didn't think the judges would pick a lamb each time," Stephanie said.

The judges did.

"I'm just happy it (the awards) went to bred and owned animals," Stephanie said.

Success did not end with the supreme trophy awarded Joelyn. She also had the grand champion market steer.

"To have two people who have two supreme animals in the ring is almost impossible, but it happened," Stoltzfus said.

In addition to Joelyn, Taylor Fullerton, Elizabethtown, had the supreme in both dairy feeder calves and swine competitions.

Even more surprising is that it was the first time the 8-year-old Taylor ever competed. His pig was named Charlotte and his dairy beef, Mr. T.

Thursday evening bubbled with excitement for Joelyn Donough whose bred and owned lamb was named supreme champion over all species among sale animals at Elizabethtown Fair. The traveling trophy is presented by Nancy Groff, Groff's Meats. Fair Queen Katie Sweigart, left.

Elizabethtown's Livestock Sale Garners Hefty Profits For Kids

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — "Prices are going well.

Kids are doubling their money," Deb Hess said of the Elizabethtown Fair Livestock Sale on Thursday evening.

Hess, who heads the beef committee, said this Elizabethtown

Fair's livestock competitions included 143 goat entries, 88 hogs, 42 beef and dairy beef, 130 sheep, 86 dairy cows, and 110 rabbits.

Joelyn Donough sells her grand champion market steer to Rob Billet of Hosses Steak and Sea-house for $2,500. Fair Queen Katie Sweigart, right.

Stephen Geib, Manheim, sells his grand champion market goat to Richard Albright, Audrey Daggett, and Jodi Brady of Albright and Thiry Orthodontics, Elizabethtown, for $650.

Reserve champion goat shown by Kristofer Bucher, Manheim, sells to Mike Firestine representing Lebanon Valley Farmers Bank/Fulton for $400.

Taylor Fullerton, Elizabethtown, sells his grand champion swine for $1,200 to Dennis Hackman Roofer represented by Clint Huber, Todd Forrey, and Ben Mummau, who donated it back to be resold for $475 to benefit the fair. Fair Queen Katie Sweigart, right.

Dorothy Heistand pays Erin Willard $650 for the reserve champion market lamb, then donated the lamb to be resold to raise $175 for the fair. Fair Queen Katie Sweigart, left.

The reserve grand champion market steer shown by Tiffany Wehry, Hershey, sells to Dottie Mentzler for $1,500. Fair Queen Katie Sweigart, center.

Meet A Fair Family

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent
BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — If you are looking for Bill and Ada Myers at the Bedford Fair, you will find them in the sheep barns.

Long time sheep and goat farmers, Bill and Ada are always helping their grandchildren claim more prizes.

"We began in 1971 with our own kids and we haven't stopped since," Bill grins.

All of their 11 grandchildren have participated in the Bedford Fair and this year, only Rachel, a student at Bucknell University, and Krista, a member of the public relations team at the Altoona Convention Center were not involved.

But, that is not to say they haven't been in the past. Rachel was a regular participant in the lead line for a number of years. Krista took home many trophies with her sheep.

They are both the daughters of Vaughn and Teresa Myers who still have Kyler at home. This year, Kyler took the senior/intermediate champion fitter trophy; the intermediate champion sheep fitter; and took first place in the heavy middleweight steer competition.

Cody Waltemire is the son of Charlotte Myers Layton. Cody was the senior goat showman and showed the reserve champion middleweight market lamb. He took home the reserve champion middleweight goat prize and the champion senior sheep showman and won first place in livestock judging.

Gunnar Layton, also the son of Charlotte, showed the reserve champion goat and was the junior champion sheep showman and a class winner with market lambs. Tanner Waltemire showed the reserve champion heavy-weight market lamb and champion lightweight market lamb as well as the reserve grand champion market lamb.

Cindy Myers Sollenberger's son, Willie, took home the junior goat showman trophy and the trophy for the champion swine showman.

Lacey Sollenberger was the junior champion sheep fitter.

Other grandchildren in the this year's fair were Shawn and Ryan Styer, sons of Vickie Myers Styer. Shawn and Ryan both show lambs.

The Myers clan, steady fair exhibitors since 1971. Back row, from left: Kyler Myers, Vaughn Myers, Cody Waltemire, Tanner Waltemire, Charlotte Layton. Middle row, from left: Bill Myers, Vickie Styer, Lacey Sollenberger, Ada Myers, Cindy Sollenberger. Front row, from left: Ben Sollenberger, Ryan Styer, and Gunnar Layton.

"Fair week is a busy time and something we look forward to each year," says Ada who stays in a camper during the fair time.

"We all have fun. We all cheer for each other." The Myers children include Cindy Sollenberger, Vickie Styer, Vaughn Myers, and Charlotte Layton.

Bedford County Girl Shows Top Two Steers At Fair

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent
BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Shannon Braman, daughter of Tom and Karen Braman of 9267

Grand champion hog was purchased by Jones and Kendall. The hog was owned by Ashley Lassinger.

US Route 220, Bedford, took home double trophies in a rare win at the Bedford County Fair.

Shannon, 12, exhibited both the champion and reserve champion market steer. She and her sister, Cassandra, share the honor as the girls raise their steers together.

The grand champion was bought by William Campbell of Hoss's Steak and Sea House for $3.70 per pound at the livestock auction held on Saturday, the closing day of the fair.

The reserve steer was purchased by Dean Lemley for $1.75.

Grand champion hog was a 252-pound crossbred owned by Ashley Lassinger of Manns

Choice and sold for $5.25 to Ben Kendall. Chelsea Cessna showed the reserve grand hog which was bought by Beth Ash for $4.

Dennis Dibert of D&D Enterprises purchased the grand champion 85-pound Goat owned by Meghan Barkley for $11.

Prices stayed up through the nearly all day livestock auction.

Champions might have brought less than in other years, but the overall average was high.

The sale brought in $154,939.28 for the 4-H and FFA members who sold 305 animals.

vegetable oil is a fairly simple procedure.

"It's really not that hard to do," he said.

The process uses methanol and small amount of lye to separate glycerol and other substances from the vegetable or soybean oil, leaving pure biodiesel.

As manager of Fulton Farm, a community-supported vegetable operation at Wilson College in Chambersburg, Steiman plans to use the fuel to power the farm's irrigation pump, and is considering additional diesel-powered equipment to use on the farm.

Biodiesel is slowly catching on in the area as a renewable, environmentally-friendly replacement for petroleum-based diesel. Many of the tractors at this year's Ag Progress field demonstrations were fueled by a mixture of biodiesel and conventional diesel. One of the Penn State tour buses was also running on the plant-derived fuel.

In the U.S., some biodiesel is being produced and used by farmers and a number of public agencies. Most of this biodiesel comes from the Midwest and is usually blended with #2 diesel at a rate of 2 or 20 percent (B2 and B20, respectively.)

According to Gerhart, there are only about 10 commercial-scale biodiesel plants in the country.

REDDI has been taking bids for a feasibility study for a plant producing 10 million gallons of biodiesel per year in southcentral Pennsylvania.

About 9.5 million bushels of soybeans per year would be required to supply a facility of that size.

REDDI conducted two meetings this spring, one in Berks County and one in Adams County, to draw farmer participation.

Russ Montgomery, REDDI president, said farmer involvement will be key to the success of the biodiesel project.

"We can't do any of this without farmers," Montgomery said. "We want the farmers to be at the table."

REDDI covers an area including Franklin, Cumberland, Adams, York, Dauphin, Lebanon, Lancaster, and Berks counties, and part of northern Maryland.

For more information, call REDDI at (717) 920-8450.

Northeast Order Uniform Milk Price For July 2003

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, Market Administrator for the Northeast Federal Milk Marketing Order, has announced that the statistical uniform price (SUP) paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order during July 2003 is $12.46 per hundredweight ($1.07 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The producer price differential (PPD) portion of the SUP for July is $0.68 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD ($0.68) combined with the corresponding month's Class III price ($11.78) equals the SUP ($12.46).

The SUP represents a benchmark minimum price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for farm milk containing of 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The actual price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the composition of a farm's milk differs from the component benchmarks. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool. The PPD is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components and is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant(s). The SUP and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the further away the plant(s) receiving the producers' milk are from Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston).

The Class prices for milk pooled in September 2002 are as follows: Class I, $13.02 (Suffolk County, Mass.); Class II, $10.63; Class III, $11.78; and Class IV, $9.95. Comparable prices for July 2002 were: Class I, $13.87; Class II, $11.14; Class III, $9.33; and Class IV price, $10.45. The component values for July 2003 are protein, $2.5480 per pound; butterfat, $1.2055 per pound; other solids, $0.0124 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.6605 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 2.017 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 41.9 percent of producer milk receipts. The Class I utilization was 39.4 percent in July 2002.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 20.3 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 30 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 7.8 percent of the total.

ANDY ANDREWS Editor

PENNSYLVANIA'S HEARTLANDS VOL. 3: THE WORLD WAR II YEARS, by Susan Wert Vogt. Desktop Editing Co., 2003, 177 pp., $33.00. ISBN 0-9708901-3-3

Last year I reviewed Vogt's first volume in the "Pennsylvania's Heartlands" series, the stories of rural people. Though I haven't seen volume 2, which Vogt calls "more stories about rural folks," there was a purpose to the latest volume, number three. Vogt, probably in response to what our nation went through following 9-11, put together the current volume with testimonials from central and south-central Pennsylvania residents who served during wartime.

A great deal of volume 3 relies on accounts from a book that Vogt was fond of as a child, "Pennsylvania At War: 1941-1945," from school. Vogt makes quick account of how organizations banded together, much like they did after 9-11, to "turn the tide of war." (As a history buff, I really enjoyed the World War II timeline she provided.)

One such group during the "war to end all wars" was the Civilian Conservation Corps, CCC. The CCC "helped turn 'boys into men' who would later serve their country during World War II," according to Vogt.

Importantly, Vogt points out that farming was a big contributor to the great victory. Even the Hershey Chocolate's Ration D bar kept a soldier from starvation, she notes. On page 34, Vogt notes: "Every type of business, in fact, made its contribution, direct or indirect, to victory. Labor and management cooperated to push production to unheard-of heights. The war could scarcely have been won without this remarkable achievement. Pennsylvania could well be proud of the combat record of its industrial arm."

She quotes from the "Pennsylvania At War" booklet that "the miner's pick and the millman's drill were no more potent weapons than the farmer's plow." (Page 164). For the first time in anyone's memory, at the time, actual production acreage increased, from 6,097,116 acres in Pennsylvania in 1940 to 6,610,473 in 1945. The number of farms in the state increased from 169,027 to 173,267 in the same time (page 35). These figures came from the War booklet.

Annual milk production climbed from 546 million gallons in 1941 to a new high of 610 million gallons in 1945 (page 36). Pennsylvania agriculture was a half billion dollar a year industry back then (very, very substantial).

She also noted that at Pearl Harbor, about 3,000 were killed. Four from York County were among the dead.

Vogt covers a lot of accounts from people who served in the war in many capacities, including those who even served as staff bodyguards.

Vogt has put together a splendid book, with color photos, too!

AND ENJOYING SWEET AND HARD CIDER, 3rd Edition, by Annie Proulx and Lew Nichols. Storey Publishing, 2003, 221 pp., $14.95. ISBN 1-58017-520-1

CIDER is dedicated to "cider apples and amateur cidemakers everywhere."

In the Introduction, the authors noted that "cider drinking has been an American tradition since the days of the Mayflower, whose passengers brought it with them from Europe. By 1638, barrels of cider could be found in the cellars of virtually every farmhouse and city home in New England."

The book is chockfull of apple varieties used in making cider, step-by-step guides to making varieties of cider, cider vinegar making, and lots of cider recipes. Page 90 includes "cider statistics," which tells us a lot: did you know a standard apple tree will produce about 10 bushels of apples, and a bushel of apples will yield two to three gallons of fresh cider?

AN AMERICAN COUPLE'S WORKING SEASON IN THE OUTBACK, by Rebecca Long Chaney. Professional Press, 2002, 443 pp., $14.99 (add 5 percent tax for Maryland residents, and $5 for shipping cost), ISBN 1-57087-609-6

This book could be considered Long Chaney's "Epic Journey."

The author is a longtime Frederick News-Post writer. She and her dairyman husband, Lee, simply leave their jobs and take a year to travel the Outback.

It's an emotional, agonizing decision, but one they are both ready for. (Though I wish Long Chaney would explain exactly why they would do such a thing — it's never quite clear in the book, other than for some deep-rooted emotional need, or simply feeling fed up with their daily working lives.)

Long Chaney provides a great deal of detail into the joys and hazards of the long, involved journey. This was a spiritual test of their lives, and she makes it a lot of fun, and provides insights into cultures that are beyond the reasoning of people growing up in the U.S. Mid-Atlantic and Northeast.

But her recollections of specific feelings and events, near-disasters and personal turmoil, personalities and love for the Australian Outback come through in a nice way. For lovers of the travelogue, for those who want a taste of farm and ranch life Down Under, the book is a treat.

CORN SILAGE MOISTURE

Philip E. Wagner
Extension Agent — Dairy
Franklin County

The moisture content of silage at time of harvest is the most critical factor affecting silage quality, because moisture levels dictate the kind of fermentation process that will take place, how the fermentation will proceed, and what products the fermentation process will produce.

Everything else — including the date on the calendar, the location of the kernel milk line, and when the neighbor begins to chop — is of secondary importance. Be ready with your moisture tester or microwave oven to monitor the whole plant moisture content so that harvesting can begin at the moisture level that is optimum for your storage system.

Determining when to ensile corn can be a challenge because, for example, 110-day corn does not always mature in 110 days. Hot weather speeds up the maturing process, and once the crop has matured, the plant "shuts down" — moisture levels can drop rapidly and catch you off guard. On the other hand, as the cooler, shorter days of fall approach, the crop matures at a much slower pace — it may not mature prior to the first frost, and once frosted, moisture levels can drop rapidly.

Don't let your eyes deceive you. When you observe corn fields turning brown, the corn may not be as dry as it appears. This is especially true with drought-stricken corn. The leaves may be brown and dry, but the stalk and ear may still contain fair amounts of moisture. Even though the bottom leaves are "fired," the top may still be pushing forth new growth. Thus, if you cut the field too quickly, you could be losing some dry matter yield.

However, when the moisture and "life" leaves the stalk, look for whole-plant moisture to drop rapidly. Monitor the crop closely to get the timing right. Also remember, the bottom leaves represents only a small percentage of the plant's total weight, so the impact of firing on whole-plant moisture and yield is often less than what you might expect.

The best way to determine plant moisture is to cut about 6 stalks, which are representative of the field, chop them to ensiling length, and conduct a moisture test on them. If a chopper is not handy, a home mulching machine works well.

Once kernels are well developed and the kernel milk line begins to regress, whole-plant moisture levels drop about 0.6 percentage units per day. This drydown rate can be used to help predict harvest dates. For example, if your plan is to ensile corn at 65 percent moisture, but the moisture level is 72 percent, that means the moisture needs to drop by 7 percentage units before being ensiled. Divide these 7 percentage units by 0.6 and you'll find that the crop should be ready to ensile in about 11 days. Sudden changes in plant and weather conditions can affect this drydown rate, as discussed earlier.

Zone Tillage A Focus Of Penn State On-Farm Studies Ag Progress Demonstrations Examine Conservation Tillage

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The zone's the thing.

For crop growers, the temperature of the soil around the seed is a critical area. That "zone" microenvironment around the seed can be darkened by a tillage process, warming up the soil enough to get earlier plant growth.

Zone tillage incorporates conservation tillage techniques critical to preserving soil health and tilth, part of a series of commercial demonstrations Tuesday morning at Ag Progress.

Ron Hoover, Penn State senior project associate and on-farm research coordinator, helped coordinate the demonstrations.

Conservation tillage methods keep crop residue on the soil surface, noted Hoover. At least 30 percent of the bare ground must be covered with residue. At the demonstrations, the residue was oat stover.

Eight tools from commercial manufacturers were on display, including six deep tillage tools. Those who attended Ag Progress could view the work they did on the demonstration field.

Zone tillage left a swath about 8 inches wide and 4 inches deep. Also included in the demonstrations were subsoiler and subtilers, vertical tillage tools, and others.

The on-farm research project has included many counties so far, such as Erie, Fayette, Bradford, Susquehanna, Wyoming, Lycoming, Centre, Columbia, Ron Hoover, Penn State senior project associate, on-farm research coordinator, speaks about conservation tillage Tuesday at Ag Progress Days.

Lancaster, York, Berks, Huntingdon, Juniata, Cumberland, Westmoreland, Sullivan, and Cambria counties.

The research, noted Hoover, is driven by farmer questions, such as fertilizer rates, details about zone tillage, and new types of corn tests, including Bt corn for rootworm control (encompassing seven trials in six different counties).

Hoover spoke about the benefits of zone tillage. The tillage, noted Hoover, allows growers to go into the fields earlier and provide earlier seed planting and growth. Because of last year's drought, tests were inconclusive regarding improved yields on fields throughout the state. This year, however, research will closely examine potential benefits, allowing a head start on corn growth.

The key: getting soil temperatures above 48 degrees, to as high as 54 degrees, to promote plant growth.

Last year, Hoover noted, there were nine trials on zone tillage. There were little differences in yield (compared to no-till or conventional till with chisel plow and disk harrow).

Because of the drought, zone and conventional tillage actually released soil moisture, not made up because of the lack of drought.

That moisture escape, noted Hoover, didn't do too much for yield, with silage at 5-5.5 tons per acre, what Hoover calls a "disaster."

This year, there are five zone tillage trials, mostly in the northern part of the state, Hoover said. The results must be interpreted in light of the growing season. The questions: is getting a couple of bushels extra of corn, at $2.30 per bushel, cost effective? If the yields can be brought to 7-8 extra bushels per acre, that could provide significant benefits for growers.

Those factors also have to account for the cost of the zone tillage equipment, possible soil compaction, and the wear, fuel, and labor factors in using the equipment.

'AGRICULTURE ALTERNATIVES' OFFER FARMERS CHOICES

Lynn Kime
Extension Agent For Community And Economic Development
Capitol Region

Webster's dictionary defines alternative as "offering or expressing a choice." These choices are now as varied as the producers in the area. Producers may have a different idea for an alternative for their own operations. These alternatives may be used to sustain an operation that needs a change for whatever reason.

Penn State University offers a series of publications outlining many different alternative practices that may be used to sustain an existing operation. These publications are called the "Agriculture Alternative" series. They may be accessed on the World Wide Web at <http://agalternatives.aers.psu.edu>.

The publications provide background information on how to adopt the alternative practice, covering such issues as the facilities needed and how to produce the crop. Each publication also contains an enterprise budget as a guideline for the producer.

Major expenses are outlined, along with space for potential producers to insert their own figures. The series is a helpful research tool for producers who are considering an alternative but have no idea of what they would like to try.

To make the transition to an alternative crop, producers must choose the alternative carefully. An alternative that does not require much additional capital investment is something to consider. If a business is struggling now, the additional capital needed for the transition to another crop may be detrimental to the health of the business. This is why an alternative that resembles what the producer is doing is sometimes beneficial. For example, a livestock producer might raise heifers for a local dairy producer. Facilities and labor requirements for both enterprises are the same, but the heifers are considered an alternative crop.

Another alternative for producers is to grow another crop than they have traditionally produced. Grain producers may use a small portion of their land to grow vegetables or another horticultural crop. While many of the practices are the same, the crops are different. The alternative crop may have a higher profit margin per acre. In this area, the possibilities of what crops can be produced is varied because our climate will support many different crops.

Agro-tourism and agritainment are other possibilities, especially if the operation is close to a large population area. For these options, the producer will need to research the legalities of the proposed changes, as well as marketing.

Whatever the business chooses to do, a business plan or at least research, is required before making the transition. Without proper planning, there is less chance of success. Production agriculture is no different than any business. Research and development are crucial.

I have never considered houses as an alternative crop, although selling one or two building lots may be necessary to sustain an operation. All options must be weighed before decisions are made. The next time you pass farmland in your travels, consider what else that land may be used for, other than houses.

Lancaster County Weekly Cattle

New Holland, Pa.
Report Supplied By USDA
Friday, Aug. 22, 2003

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2173	1909
LAST WEEK	2560	1314
LAST YEAR	2163	1939

Compared to last week, slaughter steer prices opened the week trending mostly steady to firm. However, after the national markets gained several dollars mid-week the Thursday run sold fully 2.00-3.00 higher. The Monday and Tuesday runs were both light, with the Tuesday supply only including 85 head of steers. The Thursday run included some well-fed stock, with Prime steers trading up to 86.85; with the run including 460 head of steers. The western direct feed yards moved their steers early this week with the bulk of the live cattle trading 2.00-3.00 higher in the Southern Plains from 80.00-81.00. Prices reported out of Kansas were as much as 4.00 higher at 82.00. The Nebraska and Colorado feed lots also put on a few dollars this week, trading from 1.00-1.50 higher, or 81.00-82.00 on a dressed basis. Its been several years since fat cattle trading through the sale ring, and the current live cattle contract at the Merc were both in the 80's in August, and when you throw in the soaring prices of feeder cattle, it's a formula for a headache. Local producers are thrilled to be receiving top dollar for their finished steers, however when most make the trip across the state line in search of feeder cattle to refill their pen space, most are not willing to pay well over a 100.00 for 500 pounds. Local Holstein steer prices were steady to 2.00 higher. The bulk of the increase was on the Thursday supply, as packer buyers threw some of the spotted stock in with their black cattle to try to shave a few dollars off their loads. Slaughter heifer runs were light, trading steady to 2.00 higher. Slaughter cows sold steady to 2.00 higher on very good early week demand, with late week bids weak to as much as 2.00 lower as buyer attendance was lighter than normal. Slaughter bulls sold mostly steady, instances weaker. The reported supply this week in Lancaster County included 726 head of slaughter steers, 113 head of slaughter heifers, 982 head of slaughter cows, 114 head of slaughter bulls, and 238 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1180-1465 lbs 83.00-86.85, 80.00-83.75 early in the week. Choice 2-3 1070-1490 lbs 80.00-83.50, 77.00-80.50 early in the week, higher yielding Charolais and Limi-crosses 81.00-85.00, heavyweights 1500-1550 lbs 78.00-80.00. Higher yielding Choice 1-2 1145-1420 lbs 82.00-85.25. Choice 4, few full 1055-1435 lbs 76.25-79.50. Select and low Choice 2-3 1055-1480 lbs 77.00-80.75, 75.25-78.00 early in the week, Charolais-crosses 77.75-80.25, heavyweights 1540-1630 lbs 76.00-77.75. Select 1-2 1070-1415 lbs 75.75-79.00, 72.50-75.00 early in the week, several heavier muscled 72.50-84.25, returning to feed 965-1255 lbs 71.00-80.00. Few Standard 1-2 1115-1335 lbs 73.50-75.25.

Holstein Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-3 1305-1560 lbs 81.00-85.00, couple full 69.75, beef-crosses 1250-1520 lbs 74.25-77.25. Choice 2-3 1260-1560 lbs 68.50-71.00, 66.75-70.00 early in the week, few heavy 1600-1675 lbs 65.50-69.75. Select and low Choice 2-3 1225-1560 lbs 64.00-68.25. Select 1-2 1090-1505 lbs 64.00-66.25. Standard 1-2 1015-1395 lbs 55.50-62.75.

Slaughter Heifers: Single Prime 3 1245 lbs 84.00. Choice 2-3 1035-1355 lbs 75.00-80.00, couple Charolais and Limi-crosses 80.25-82.00. Select and low Choice 2-3 1015-1235 lbs 74.75-78.50. Lean (Light-Wt), 85-90, 750-1000 lbs, 30.50-36.50, 27.00-32.75.

Slaughter Bulls: Yield Grade 1 1075-2150 lbs 50.00-57.00, high dressing up to 67.50, low dressing 1045-1195 lbs 43.50-49.00. Yield Grade 2 1330-2045 lbs 48.00-54.00. Bullocks Choice individual 1330 lbs 80.00. Calf Summary Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter calves sold mostly steady to weak. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold mostly steady for the week. The only exception being in the Graded Number 3 bull calves supply, which was slightly higher on heavier weight offerings. Demand for Graded calves continues to be cyclic, with greatest demand noted early in the week. Producers continue to receive as much as 310.00 for their finished calves, on a dressed basis. This week the PA Department of Agriculture graded 1269 head of heifers and bulls for the two graded sales in Lancaster County.

Ag Teacher

Seibert has been an ag teacher at Manheim Central High School for 18 years. She grew up on her grandparents' dairy farm in Connecticut, went to Delaware Valley College for animal husbandry, got her teaching certificate from University of Connecticut and spent two years as a shepherd in Ohio.

She has seen the world of agriculture education evolve.

"We redo the curriculum every three years," she said. "I am always taking new classes to help me keep up with the technology and trends in agriculture."

She said it is more than just the farm kids and traditional ag students and there is more to it than just farming. It is ag service, horticulture, greenhouses and a tree nursery at Manheim Central.

Seibert is also the advisor of the largest young farmers group in the county, 190 students from age 18 to 100. She said that the work ethic of children has changed since she started teaching, but she uses positive reinforcement to encourage her hard working students.

Seibert gets the best feeling from letting loose a high school graduate into the work world and seeing them succeed. She has too many success stories to talk about just one.

Manheim Central Ag teacher Deb Seibert, kneeling, believes hands on is the best way to learn. She helps Molly Snader, junior; Yvette Stoltzfus, senior; and Alicia Geib, senior, set up the landscape they designed and created for the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

She boasts that Manheim's ag program is always on the leading edge and she attributes it to the huge support of the community, school board and parents. They take field trips, go to Penn State seminars and get their hands dirty in their horticulture nursery.

And the classes aren't just for farm kids. Manheim Central requires a four and a half week course in introduction to agriculture for freshmen and Seibert says that is a positive thing.

"Some people don't know where their food comes from, even the country kids," she said.

The course seems to spark interest in a lot of students to continue with electives through their high school career, which helped the Ag program grow to 650 students she said.

Seibert feels honored to win the award, but it is all in a day's work. She loves her job and the family that supports her. Seibert lives with her husband Kevin and sons Casey, 15, and Tim, 11, on a small farm in Ephrata.

"They are so loving and supportive," she said.

Dandle says... 42IQ Looks Strong After This Year's Wet Weather!

BARENBRUG Alfalfas

Baralfa 42IQ Has Excellent Traffic Tolerance*BARALFA 32IQ- Increased Quality

One of the highest forage quality varieties anywhere. Fine stems, large leaves - well proven, widely adapted. 29/30 Disease Resistance

New!BARALFA 53HR- limited supply

Very impressive yielder with great disease resistance and fast regrowth. 109% of mean at 1998 Rock Springs trial (average of 3 years' data and still looking strong!)

30/30	Disease Resistance
4.8	Fall Dormancy
2.5	Winter Hardiness

BARALFA 54

A high yielder for southern Pennsylvania and Maryland.

BARALFA 42IQ- Increased Quality

In the last 2 yrs. we have had more good comments on its performance than any other variety. Very strong dense crown and great root system. Tolerates earlier cuts, moist soils, and traffic better than most varieties. 30/30 Disease Resistance

Add A Late Maturing Grass

BARAULA ORCHARDGRASS - Heads out 12-14 days later than Pennlate. Fine leaved - not as clumpy.

ALFAMATE - Our own mixture of Baraula and Hakari Alaska Brome, a high energy, drought tolerant grass that establishes very quickly.

- Participating Dealers -

Three brothers, Jarod, 9; Jacob, 5; and Jesse, 6, keep their mother Sharon Kline, Myerstown, busy, while her dairy farmer husband checks out the tractors.

Lots of freebies promoting the dairy industry were available at the ADADC booth operated by, from left, Tracy Enslen, Pittsburgh; Joyce Abercrombie, Pittsburgh; Alexa Stoner, Carlisle; and Jean Kummer, Philadelphia.

Ann and Ben Barshinger and children, Caleb, 6; Benjamin, 3; and Daniel, 1, find a shaded spot to eat lunch. The Barshingers, who are small grain farmers and wholesale tree farmers, are from York County.

Experience Ag Progress Days

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Acres of fun available during Ag Progress Days require more than one day to explore.

This week, from Tuesday through Thursday, visitors at the annual Penn State's College of Agriculture Ag Progress Days found activities to suit every interest and age group.

Farmers throughout the state schedule the annual event into their calendars.

"I can see what's new, and what's available, and it's like a vacation," said dairy farmer Marcus Zook, Juniata County.

Exploring new equipment and watching field machinery demonstrations are what farmers most enjoy. But, many voice the realistic fact stated by Brian Barr, "I come to see all the new equipment I can't afford."

Children find as much pleasure as their parents in climbing over equipment and dreaming of operating it.

But not all visitors are farmers or connected to agriculture business or education. Many visitors attend because the event offers so much to do, and — it's free.

"It's the best place to learn where our food comes from," said Laura Contino, State College.

Joel Hauck, Middleburg, said that he grew up coming to Ag

Progress. But it took him many years to convince his wife that she would enjoy it. Finally, last year, his wife Carolyn consented to visiting the event. She loved it.

Carolyn said, "I thought Ag Progress was just equipment displays. I never knew there was so many interesting activities for families. My children love it — I guess we'll come every year."

Experience Ag Progress through these photos snapped Tuesday during Ag Progress.

At right, cousins Jamie Good, 12, Myersdale, and Janita Good, 13, Womelsdorf, are old enough to explore the grounds on their own. Their families farm.

Twins Kathy and Tory Abbott get a wagon ride around Ag Progress grounds from Grandmother Fay Jester, State College. She said, "I brought my children here when they were little, and they liked it. Now I bring my grandchildren."

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

At first, the sound didn't register.

Not unusual, considering my normal 4 a.m. state of alertness. You know: hanging in limbo between the brain's awareness of the wake-up alarm and the body's pleading to remain in blissful sleep.

But as the head tried dragging the body to "come to," that sound was burrowing deeper into my groggy brain. Suddenly, like the proverbial light bulb, recognition struck.

Cricket!

Somewhere close, just feet away, maybe on the windowsill, a cricket was chirping away. Or singing, screeching, whatever you call the piercing noise that love-struck crickets make to contact other crickets. It was persistent and it was splitting the wee-hours silence.

A pause in the cricket's solo, though, reminded me that the wee-hour-darkness wasn't silent at all.

Other noisy insects (a friend from the West calls them "chatterbugs") buzzed and droned through their all-night concerts, singing come-on songs to others of their specie. Overnight road work underway on the interstate slicing through the farm added mechanical thumping to the background racket. And the big fan at the dairy barn roared, as it does incessantly through summer's heat.

But, overriding it all was the clear, sharp, in-your-face song of this very LOUD cricket. Inside.

Isn't a cricket in the house supposed to bode good luck? Not a bad way to start a morning. Crickets are one of my favorite insects, anyway. Their arrival signals the imminent end of late summer's oppressive heat and humidity.

While crickets send specific messages to their own kind with calls produced by rubbing their legs together, the message picked up by us humans is a different sort. Cricket songs announce school buses back on the roads, cornfields beginning to dry down for harvest, goldenrod in the fencerows and pale orange pumpkins starting to peek from under umbrella leaves.

Along with crickets, the appearance of a horde of other creeping, crawling, flitting, humming, flying, jumping and spinning "bugs" signals our inevitably changing season. Right on schedule, our annual army of domestic spiders is busy fattening up for winter, leaving their web sites strung over windowsills, door frames and above the curtains.

The incessant buzzing of cicadas, or locusts, adds more harmony to the bug music of our days and nights. Perhaps because of the summer's bounty of moisture, they seem far less prevalent than in drier, droughty years. Maybe their buzzing parts are just too damp to buzz properly.

While hanging out laundry on a recent morning, I spotted a beautiful yellow-swallowtail butterfly dining in the yard. It gracefully flitted from plant to plant, seemingly most interested in sampling nectar from various colors of impatiens flowers. Perhaps they have different flavors: red flavored like cherry, purple like grape, pink like watermelon. Would the red-and-white variegated ones hint of peppermint?

But the most interesting insect to turn up lately was a neon-lime-green katydid perched one evening on the box fan set up inside the front door. The fan moves air through the house on stagnant days, mostly providing comfort for Derra Dog in her heavy Labrador retriever coat (enough of it shed all over the house lately to construct a puppy).

Why the large, bright green insect was perched on the fan remains a mystery. Had it just come through a crack in the door and the fan was the first object encountered? Did it like the gentle vibration of the motor? Or was it trying to stay cool? I gently plucked the katydid up in my hand; it promptly hopped several inches farther up my arm.

For a moment, I considered "jarring" the pretty green visitor for budding entomologist and grandson, Josh, and his insect collection. But I couldn't bring myself to do that. Instead, the personable katydid got a ride outside — still on my arm — and relocation to a hanging spider plant on the porch.

It may be doomed to live a short and seasonal bug's life.

But in the meantime, let it sing.

Take Control Of Future

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension's two-day training, Skills for Taking Control of Your Future will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on September 11 and 12 at the Berks County Ag Center, 1238 County Welfare Rd., Leesport.

The training is intended for agency personnel and volunteers who work with individuals, groups, and families with limited resources. The training will be given by Penn State Cooperative Extension Educators from the southeast region.

Skills for Taking Control of Your Future can help clients improve their understanding of themselves; learn how their self-perception affects their ability to stay employed; identify personal barriers to success; strengthen their personal capabilities; learn new skills to better manage their money; and learn how decision-making gives them control in their life.

For more information on registration fees and program outline, request a brochure from Penn State Cooperative Extension at (610) 378-1327.

National FFA Awards Scholarship To Berks Co. Girl

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The National FFA Organization awarded a $1,000 Westfalia-Surge, Inc. scholarship to Kristy Dietrich of Tulpehocken Area HS FFA. The Westfalia-Surge, Inc., as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc., sponsors the scholarship. Kristy plans to use the funds to pursue a degree at Pennsylvania State University — Berks.

This scholarship is one of 1,926 awarded through the National FFA Scholarship Program this year. Currently, 153 corporate sponsors generously contribute more than $2 million to support this program.

Dietrich was also one of two outstanding FFA members recognized by the Reading Fair board at their annual banquet on July 23 at the Virginville Grange. She has served as secretary and president of the Tulpehocken FFA. She is accomplished in public speaking and livestock judging, placing 6th at FFA days conducted at Penn State University in June of this year and receiving a gold medal.

Dietrich also enjoys showing her crossbred steers and registered Limousin cattle. She also received a $100 saving bond from Wachovia Bank for her achievements.

Ida's Notebook by Ida Risser

August may be the month for peaches and sweet corn, but in our family it is also a big birthday month. Most of the birthdays are for teenagers. One will start college this year while another is hunting a college for next year. We mail a check to a far away address rather than mail a gift they might not like.

Our recent wet and damp weather has caused weeds to grow everywhere. The wheelbarrow, back of the house, is usually full of weeds that I've pulled and also tree trimmings. The limbs are too low and interfere with mowing the lawn. Our two grandsons have been doing this job for us this summer as my husband stays in the house with his crutches.

I did not plant zucchini this year, but I've been asked for recipes. One is a chocolate zucchini cake that includes many ingredients. You can substitute sauerkraut for the zucchini. One time I took this cake to a square dance group meeting and we had fun getting people to guess the unusual item that was included in the cake.

One of the ministers in our church is moving to Florida to be pastor of a church there. What we remember about him is the fact that he was there for us when Allen had his heart operation, his hip operation, his back operation, and so on. What he remembers about us is the black raspberries that we gave him each spring. If we must part, it is nice to have pleasant memories of each other. We wish him and his family Godspeed.

Overweight, Obesity

Overweight and obesity are topics we have been hearing about a lot in the past months. You would think that with all the diet information that is available we would be getting thinner and not heavier!

Unfortunately this is not the case and even the Surgeon General has emphasized that there is no quick fix for this problem. What's important to remember is that the best way to achieve and maintain a healthy weight is to make small changes over time that you are willing to do forever!

Here are some ideas that can help you and your family move towards a healthy weight and fit future.

1. Eat early: Kick your day off with breakfast. Try to include a small amount of protein (yogurt, peanut butter, lean deli-meat or an egg); add a whole grain food (high-fiber cereal, whole wheat toast or bran muffin); along with a fruit treat (canned peaches, frozen blueberries or 100 percent juice).

2. Eat regularly: Snack smart to curb the munchies. Don't allow yourself to get over hungry as this often leads to overeating. Have snacks available that provide longer lasting energy such as nuts, trail mix, low-fat string cheese, or yogurt with fruit.

3. Eat bright: Include lots of colorful fruits and vegetables. Five servings a day will help ensure plenty of disease-fighting nutrients.

4. Eat whole: Enjoy the nutrient combinations in whole foods. Whole grain foods are packed with fiber, folic acid and other nutrients for health. Look at the label to be sure you are getting 100 percent whole grain foods. Also, low-fat and fat-free dairy foods are an essential part of a healthy weight loss diet so include at least two servings per day.

5. Eat strong: Put some protein in every meal and snack. Protein, more than carbohydrate or fat, leads to feelings of fullness and satiety. Solid protein (rather than liquid, like milk) is more satisfying. Include small amounts when you eat to help in weight loss.

6. Eat half: Re-size super portions. Today's portions, whether restaurant, fast food, vending, or cookbooks, are larger than portions served 15 to 20 years ago. Many servings are two to four times what our body needs, so cut your portions in half and save the rest for later.

Along with changes in eating habits we also have to increase our level of physical activity to achieve a healthy weight. While any amount of activity is better than none, experts suggest a total of 30 to 60 minutes per day. Again keep in mind that the best way to increase your physical activity is to start with small changes over time that you can live with forever.

1. Move more: Every step counts. The goal is to spend more time moving and less time sitting. Aim for at least 30 minutes of physical activity a day; at least 10 minutes at a time; at least five days per week.

2. Move often: Be active throughout the day. It is often more realistic to find 10 to 20 minutes at a time to be active than a whole hour at a time.

3. Move inside: Walk the stairs, the halls, and the mall. Weather, work, and hectic schedules can be obstacles to increasing activity. So build more steps into your inside routine: Take the stairs, walk around the office while on the phone, or take an extra lap at the mall.

4. Move outside: Walk, bike, blade, mow, rake, and shovel. Whatever gets you moving outside is good physical activity.

5. Move for fun: Skip, dance, swing, and fly a kite. Think of things you enjoy doing that get your body moving and do more of these. Dance with someone you love, walk the dog, play with your kids, or vacuum to music!

6. Move together: Join a class or walk with friends. Making a commitment to someone else can make it easier to fit physical activity in your schedule.

Remember there is no magic answer. The key to a healthy weight is to forget the fads and start now by making simple changes in you're eating and activity habits that will last forever. Small changes over time do make a difference.

Fashion In A New Light At Maryland State Fair

TIMONIUM, Md. — The 4-H Fashion Revue, a fashion show comprised of young men and women modeling outfits they have created, constructed, or purchased will be conducted on Wednesday, Aug. 27, at 7 p.m. in the Maryland State Fair's Horse Sales Pavilion. This year's 4-H Fashion Revue, with the theme "Lights, Camera, Fashion" is one of the hidden highlights of the Maryland State Fair.

The Fashion Revue will feature approximately 75 youth who will compete for ribbons and prizes.

While the sewing skills have been judged in other competitions, Fashion Revue participants are judged on the overall appearance of the ensembles. The judges look for proper fit of garments on the contestant/model as well as complimentary color selections, poise, presentation, personal flare, accessories, makeup, and age appropriateness.

"There are a variety of ways that the 4-H Fashion Revue builds life skills. Youth learn consumer, creativity, and team skills, gain interview skills by speaking and presenting themselves to judges, and increase their self-esteem," said Jean Greene, extension specialist, 4-H Youth Development.

"The 4-H Fashion Revue program is also an excellent opportunity for youth who are aspiring designers looking to showcase their designs. In fact, former 4-H'er and 1998 Fashion Revue Ready-to-Wear Grand Champion, Stephanie Brown, is now designing her own line and has received interest from a couture house in Europe."

The 122nd Maryland State Fair, which offers a variety of livestock and horse shows, midway rides, thoroughbred horse racing, arts and crafts, and home arts exhibits, runs from Friday, Aug. 22 through Monday, Sept. 1, at the Timonium Fairgrounds in Baltimore County.

RIGHT-SIZE YOUR TRACTOR FLEET...

...IT DOESN'T MATTER
IS ONE OR TEN.

Introducing the AGCO GT Series...an all-new 45 to 73 PTO HP series designed exactly right to meet your needs...when a compact tractor doesn't have the heft you need and the larger mid-size is a bigger investment than you want to make.

Whatever your farming application—specialty crops, loader work, hay making—an AGCO GT might be just right for you. Off the farm, a GT provides the power, dependability and dealer backing you want to make your customers happy and your bottomline brighter.

GT45 • GT55 • GT65 • GT75

All four models are available with 2 or 4 wheel drive and in both platform or cab styles.

Cheesy Ideas For Snacks, Breakfast, Lunch, Dinner

NACHO CHICKEN-CHEESE SPREAD

1 cup shredded mild Cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese
1 cup shredded cooked chicken
1 cup reduced-fat sour cream
1 tablespoon packaged taco seasoning mix
½ cup cooked fresh or drained canned corn
4-ounce can chopped green chilies
Cornbread crackers
Optional garnish: additional corn, jalapeños
Mix cheese, chicken, sour cream, and seasoning mix in a medium bowl. Stir in corn and green chilies.
Cover and refrigerate for at least one hour before serving.
Garnish with corn and jalapeños, if desired. Spread on crackers.

American Dairy Association

CHEDDAR PEANUT BALL

2 cups shredded cheddar cheese, room temperature
3-ounces cream cheese
2 tablespoons finely chopped red onion
¼ teaspoon curry powder
½ cup chopped salted peanuts
Beat together cheddar cheese and cream cheese until well blended. Stir in onion and curry powder. Shape to form a cheese ball. Roll in peanuts. Cover and chill to blend flavors. Serve at room temperature with assorted crackers. Yield: about 2 cups cheese spread.

SPICY SNACK MIX

6 cups popped popcorn
2 cups small corn chips
1 cup baked pretzel snack crackers or mini pretzels
8 ounces Cheddar or Jalapeno Jack cheese, cut into cubes
1 tablespoon taco seasoning mix
Place popcorn, corn chips, and pretzels in a large bowl. Add cheese cubes and taco seasoning mix. Toss lightly.

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association

BARBECUE CHICKEN, CHEDDAR SNACKWICHES

¼ cup sundried tomato-flavored or plain mayonnaise
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
8 slices hearty Italian bread, cut into ½-inch slices
2 left-over boneless, grilled chicken breasts or 8 ounces ready-prepared grilled chicken, sliced
½ medium red onion, sliced
6-ounces grated sharp or extra-sharp white Cheddar cheese

4 cooked bacon slices
6 tablespoons honey-based barbecue sauce
Barbecue sauce
Preheat covered grill (e.g. George Foreman) or non-stick skillet for five minutes. Spray with non-stick cooking spray.

Combine mayonnaise and grated Parmesan in small bowl. Arrange bread slices on cutting board and spread approximately one tablespoon Parmesan-mayo mixture on four of the bread slices. Top each with several slices of chicken, onion, ½ Cheddar cheese, and one bacon slice. Spread remaining slices of bread with 1½ tablespoons barbecue sauce. Assemble sandwiches.

Cook sandwiches two at a time in covered grill, about six minutes or until bread is golden and cheese is melted. Remove from grill and cut into quarters. Serve with a side of additional barbecue sauce if desired.

Note: If you do not have a covered grill, cook sandwiches in a non-stick skillet until lightly browned, about three minutes on each side.

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association

CHEESY LOBSTER QUESADILLAS

4-ounce can chili peppers
2 cups cooked, chopped lobster meat
1 cup coarsely chopped fresh spinach
1 cup Jalapeno Jack cheese
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup chopped fresh cilantro
12 8-inch flour tortillas
2 tablespoons butter
Preheat boiler.

Place peppers skin side up on a foil-lined baking sheet. Broil peppers until blackened, about 5 minutes. Place peppers in a resealable plastic bag. Let stand 5 minutes. Peel and cut peppers in short strips.

Combine peppers and remaining ingredients except butter. Divide mixture among six tortillas. Top with remaining tortillas. Heat butter over medium heat in large skillet or griddle. Cook until golden on each side, about 4 minutes. To serve, cut each quesadilla into quarters.

American Dairy Association

APPLE, CINNAMON, BRIE QUESADILLAS

1½ tablespoons granulated sugar
1½ tablespoon brown sugar
1½ teaspoons ground cinnamon
5 tablespoons butter, divided
2 large Granny Smith apples, peeled, cored, and cut into ½-inch slices
3 tablespoons apple juice
6 8-inch tortillas
8-ounces Brie cheese, sliced
3 tablespoons chopped toasted walnuts

Mix sugars and cinnamon, set aside. Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a large non-stick skillet over medium heat. Add sliced apples and saute one minute. Add half the sugar mixture and apple juice to the apples. Cook until apples are tender but not mushy, about 3-5 minutes. Remove from heat and cool slightly.

For each quesadilla, spoon 1¼ of the apple mixture on half the tortilla. Top with 1¼ of the cheese. Fold remaining tortilla over top to make a half moon shape. Repeat with remaining ingredients. Heat remaining butter in a large skillet or griddle over medium heat. Cook quesadillas three at a time until golden brown on each side, about four minutes.

To serve, cut each quesadilla into thirds. Sprinkle with some of the remaining sugar mixture and some of the walnuts.

AUTUMN CHEESECAKE

Crust:
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
½ cup finely chopped pecans
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ cup unsalted butter, melted
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a large bowl, stir together the graham cracker crumbs, pecans, sugar, cinnamon, and melted butter. Press into bottom of 9-inch spring form pan. Bake in preheated oven for 10 minutes.

Cream Cheese Layer:
2 (8-ounce) packages softened cream cheese
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
In a large bowl, combine cream cheese and sugar. Mix at medium speed until smooth. Beat in eggs one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Blend in vanilla; pour filling into baked crust.

Apple layer:
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup chopped pecans
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
4 cups peeled, cored and thinly sliced apples

In a small bowl, stir together sugar and cinnamon. Toss sugar-cinnamon mixture with apples to coat. Spoon apple layer over cream cheese layer and sprinkle with chopped pecans. Bake in preheated oven for 60-70 minutes. With knife, loosen cake from rim of pan. Let cool, then remove rim of pan. Chill cake before serving. Makes 1 (9-inch) cheesecake.

Easy Cheesy Calzone is easy to make and great to eat.

Featured Recipe

Looking for great snacks?

Say cheese!

According to a recent survey, more Americans crave savory snacks over sweets. Cheese took the top spot as American's overall favorite snack food. Cheese beat out chips, cookies, and even chocolate.

The best thing is that cheese provide calcium and other essential nutrients. So, you're not consuming empty calories or sugar.

Cheese isn't only used for snacks. Cheese transforms many everyday ingredients into a main entree, tasty appetizers, desserts, and other dishes for breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

EASY CHEESY CALZONE

16-ounces prepared pizza dough
½ cup pizza sauce
2 cups shredded part-skim Mozzarella cheese
3 cups cooked, chopped broccoli, drained
1 tablespoon butter, melted

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease a baking sheet.

On a lightly floured surface, roll dough to form a 9x14-inch rectangle, about ¼-inch thick. Transfer to prepared baking sheet.

Spread pizza sauce over half the dough. Sprinkle cheese over entire piece of dough to within half-inch of all the edges. Layer broccoli on one half of the 14-inch side (the long side) of the dough. Fold dough in half over the cheese and broccoli filling. Seal edges of the calzone by pressing with the tines of a fork. Prick top. Brush top with butter.

Bake 20-25 minutes, or until crust is lightly browned. Allow to cool 5 minutes before cutting.

CHICKEN ALFREDO

3 chicken breasts, boned and cut in half
½ cup flour
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons grated Italian cheese
1 pint heavy cream
2 tablespoons oil
½ teaspoon parsley
Salt to taste
Pepper to taste
4 tablespoons butter, softened
4 ounces Mozzarella cheese

Coat chicken with flour, then dip in beaten eggs and roll in bread crumbs flavored with 2 tablespoons grated cheese. In a little oil, fry on both sides to brown. Put in a baking dish or pan, and season with salt, pepper and parsley. Melt butter, then add heavy cream and ½ cup Italian cheese; pour over chicken. Put 1 slice mozzarella on each piece of chicken. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30-40 minutes. Yield 6 servings.

CHEESE SOUP

5 tablespoons butter
2 carrots, finely chopped
2 celery ribs, finely chopped
1 onion, finely chopped
½ green pepper, seeded, chopped
5 mushrooms, chopped
½ cup cooked ham or bacon
½ cup flour
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 quart chicken broth
1 quart milk
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 pound sharp cheddar cheese, grated

In a large pan, melt butter, add vegetables, saute for 10 minutes at low temperature (do not brown). Add flour and cornstarch. Stir constantly for three minutes. Add chicken broth and ham or bacon. Cook until slightly thickened. Add milk, paprika, and dry mustard. Stir in grated cheese slowly. Do not let cheese soup boil. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Enjoy your calcium!

Best 4-H Seamstresses On Revue

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Special honors went to 12 contestants at the annual State 4-H Fashion Revue, recently at Eisenhower Auditorium, Penn State's University Park Campus.

Fifty-nine regional finalists modeled outfits constructed as part of their 4-H projects. Judges based honors selections on construction skill, garment fit, appropriateness, and modeling poise.

Rachel Siegel, top place recipient is 13 and the daughter of Thomas and Linda Siegel of Lebanon. She made and modeled a wool coat, fur scarf, and ear muffs.

Natalie Clark, 17, daughter of Rich and Wanda Clark of Bedford, received second place for a tan suit with burgundy leather skirt and lapels.

Third place went to Rachel Ranck, 14, daughter of Jim and Joan Ranck of Christiana, who made and modeled denim jeans and a corduroy jacket.

The top-placed individuals were also a part of a 12 member honors group. Other individuals receiving honors included: Brittany Curtis, 15, daughter of Laurie Curtis of Saegertown, who made and modeled a casual top and Capri outfit. Creating suits were Shelby Harrison, 16, daughter of Stephen and Debra White of Saegertown, and Amanda Stanton, 14, daughter of Robert and Beverly Elizabeth Stanton, Everett. Richelle Ann McCullough and Tansy Michaud made and modeled period costumes. Richelle, 13, is the daughter of Tom and Mary Ann McCullough of Mercer.

Tansy is 13 and the daughter of Bob Michaud and K.C. Grapes of Irwin. Lauren Pifer, 15, daughter of Brian and Susan Pifer of Le Raysville, made a red wool pea coat pants outfit. Stacey Mangold, 18, made and modeled a leather coat ensemble. Jessica Haskins, 15, daughter of Ronald and Ruth Haskins of Saegertown, created a wool dress and hat and Jaci Marburger, 13, daughter of Daniel and Pamela Marburger of Espyville created a three-piece retro outfit featuring a duster, peasant blouse, and striped slacks.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Susquehanna County North Jackson 4-H Club

The North Jackson Ag 4-H Club's last meeting took place at the Carey's Pavilion on July 10. The meeting began as always with pledges and then roll call. Beth Giangrieco read the secretaries report and informed and reviewed some old business. Amanda Nowicki read the treasurers' report.

Jessica Sartell told about dairy camp. Megan Carey reminded the club about the car wash for county council. Mrs. Nowicki urged the club members to attend the rodeo.

Abby Onyon informed the club of some new events. There was a mandatory livestock meeting for all livestock members July 12; July 16, there was a one-day camp at the Harford fair grounds; July 17, club trip to Knoebels; July 18, 4-H dance at the Montrose fire hall; and July 23, a one-day trip to Baltimore.

Demonstrations followed. Amber Latner and Asia did their demonstration on the process of making wool and its various uses.

Kaitlin and Tara Flor did their demonstration on their boxer-dog, Guenther. Adam Stout did his presentation on his pet hermit crabs.

Susquehanna County North Jackson Ag 4-H Club

The North Jackson Ag 4-H Club met for their last meeting at Joe and Sandy Pavelski's house. The day started out with a picnic at 1 p.m. and then ended up with a meeting that was called to order at 2:08 p.m. by president Abby Onyon. The meeting started with the American and 4-H pledges.

Beth Giangrieco took role call and read the secretaries report and Amanda Nowicki read the treasurer's report.

Holly Carey reported on the livestock clinic; Megan Carey told how the County Council car wash turned out; and Amanda Nowicki told us about the County Council dance.

Megan Carey read a list of how everyone did at the scholarship horse show. Abby Onyon informed the club about several events — the one-day trip to Baltimore, the Pony roundup and Dairy roundup. The club will be taking a trip to Knoebels Grove.

Demonstrations began with Jessie Casella, Emily Walker, and Tiffany Carpenter on Jack Russell Terriers, followed by John Valentine with his presentation on diabetes. John and Josh McAllister did their demonstration on what it was like to be at the one-day camp.

ANSWER — Here's some information and recipes for using in-season peppers from Pennsylvania's "Simply Delicious" Program in answer to L. Kauffman's request. "Pennsylvania peppers are a favorite flavor enhancing ingredient in many recipes featuring meats or other vegetables. And because they come in various shades of red, yellow, orange and purple besides the basic green, they can also add a rainbow of color. Best of all, they are a significant source of vitamin C as well.

Pennsylvania vegetable growers grow about 1,000 acres of peppers to add that extra bit of flavor to pizza, salads, stir-frys, omelets, sauces, and numerous other dishes. If green peppers are left on the plant to fully mature, they will turn color. Most varieties will turn red but some turn brilliant shades of yellow or orange while others become purple. As they turn color, their sugar content increases along with their vitamin C content. Green peppers have twice as much vitamin C as citrus fruit by weight while red peppers have three times as much plus beta carotene. Hot peppers are also high in vitamin C.

While the familiar blocky bell peppers are the most common sweet pepper, there are several other kinds that are classified as sweet peppers but that have a stronger flavor than bell peppers. This extra flavor makes them excellent additions to various dishes. Among these varieties are cubanelle, banana and pimento peppers.

There are many kinds of hot peppers grown. Probably the most common ones grown in Pennsylvania are Hungarian wax, jalapeno, cherry and cayenne. Capsaicin, the substance that — more makes peppers hot, is extremely pungent in its pure state. Capsaicin and related compounds are concentrated in the placenta of the pepper — the white ribs inside the pepper that hold the seeds. Thus much of the heat of peppers can be removed if this part is cut out. It is important to wear rubber gloves or repeatedly wash one's hands while doing this to protect them. Be especially careful not touch the face or eyes during the process.

Besides adding flavor to the diet, sweet peppers can be eaten in quantities sufficient to supply significant amounts of vitamin C to the diet and help fulfill the recommended three to five servings of vegetables per day recommended by nutrition experts. Raw peppers sliced lengthwise into spears make a tasty and colorful addition to platters of other raw vegetables served with dip.

William Scepansky, corporate chef for Kegel's Produce in Lancaster, has created these tasty recipes for "Simply Delicious" Pennsylvania peppers:

Roasted And Marinated Red Peppers

This extremely versatile preparation is so easy and much better than those found in jars. Use them on pizzas, in pastas and salads, or wherever else roasted peppers are called for. Make sure to have good bread to sop up the juices.

- 6 red peppers, large, thick walled
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 teaspoon balsamic vinegar
- 2 garlic cloves, peeled and sliced thinly
- 1 celery, Rib, sliced thinly
- 1 tablespoon basil, fresh, chopped
- 1 teaspoon salt, Kosher
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper, freshly ground

Place peppers directly on a burner grate, over an open flame on a gas range or directly under a hot broiler on a sheet pan and char all sides, turning as needed to just blister the skin and not burn the flesh. Skin should turn a thin layer of black, not white with ash!

Once peppers are black on all sides, top and bottom, place them into a mixing bowl and tightly cover with plastic wrap, so as to trap the steam. Allow to stand 15 minutes. Saving as much natural pepper juice that has accumulated in the bottom of the bowl and inside the peppers, peel the charred skin from the peppers and discard. Discard stem and seeds and cut the peppers into 1x3-inch strips. Place back into the pepper juices. In a small saute pan, sweat celery and garlic in olive oil until celery is translucent and garlic is just beginning to turn golden. Immediately pour over peppers to stop from cooking. Add basil, salt, pepper and vinegar. Toss well and serve or refrigerate till ready to serve. Flavors are best when allowed to come to room temperature.

Yields approximately 4 cups.

Red Pepper Crostini with Oregano & Feta

Try these tasty Hors D' Oeuvres at your next party. They are fast and easy to make and are bursting with Mediterranean flavors. Add chopped olives, capers and/or anchovies if desired. Yields 1 dozen Hors D' Oeuvres.

French Bread, small diameter, cut into 12 ½-inch thick slices

- 2 tablespoons olive oil, extra virgin
- ¾ cup roasted red peppers (see recipe above), cut into ¼x1-inch strips
- ¼ cup Feta cheese, crumbled
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- Salt to taste
- Black pepper, freshly ground, to taste

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Brush slices of bread on both sides with olive oil, reserving a little for later, and season with salt and pepper. Lay slices flat on a sheet pan and bake till lightly golden and just crispy, not rock hard. Cool to room temperature. Divide peppers among bread slices, placing an even mound on top of each slice. Sprinkle peppers with feta cheese followed by oregano. Season each with a touch of salt and pepper and drizzle on the rest of the olive oil. Warm slightly or serve as is. Goat Cheese or Ricotta Salata can be used instead if desired. Fresh basil can also be substituted for the oregano. Enjoy!

The following recipe by Sylvia Tinkey of Canonsburg at the "Simply Delicious" Vegetable Quick Bread Contest at the 2001 Butler Fair:

Onion And Pepper Cheese Bread

- 4 cups all-purpose flour
- ½ cup sugar
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon seasoning salt
- 2 eggs
- ¼ cup oil
- 2 cups milk
- 2 cups chopped red and green sweet peppers
- 1 cup onion, chopped
- 2 cups Cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Stir together all dry ingredients and set aside. In a large mixing bowl, combine eggs, oil, milk, peppers, onions and cheese. Mix well. Add dry ingredients and combine until moistened. Pour into greased 9x5-inch bread pan and bake at 350 degrees F for 1 hour.

FDA Allows Health Claim For Walnuts

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In an important decision recently, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) affirmed the health claim, "Supportive but not conclusive research shows that eating 1.5 ounces per day of walnuts as part of a diet low in saturated fat and cholesterol may reduce the risk of heart disease."

This FDA decision comes in response to a petition filed by the California Walnut Commission, which highlights a body of international scientific research substantiating the specific benefit of consuming walnuts as part of a heart healthy diet in reducing the risk of heart disease. The body of evidence suggests that the nutritional composition of walnuts contribute to these heart health benefits.

According to Dr. Sheila G. West, Vascular Intervention Health Lab, Penn State. "There is a good amount of epidemiologic evidence, population-based evidence that people who consume nuts, and walnuts in particular, have less cardiovascular risk. There is also a very strong body of literature to say that the special kind of fatty acids, the omega-3 fatty acids that are present in walnuts, help protect people against heart disease."

The 1.5 ounces of walnuts cited by the FDA more than fulfill the daily requirement of essential omega-3 fatty acids, a critical nutrient deficient in the American diet. Among tree nuts, walnuts are distinctive because of their concentration of omega-3 fatty acids. The importance of omega-3 fatty acids has been stressed in the recent reports of leading health organizations and governmental agencies recommending new dietary intake guidelines aimed at promoting public health by encouraging increased omega-3 fatty acid intake by Americans.

While walnuts' ability to reduce cholesterol seems to be at the heart of their health benefits, walnuts contain a host of other important vitamins, minerals, protein, and antioxidants. Walnuts are cited as the largest single source of antioxidants, next to rose hips, according to a study from the University of Minnesota and University of Oslo.

"It appears that the omega-3 ability to reduce inflammation and clumping of platelets may have broad health implications, including the reduction of C-Reactive Protein (CRP) in the body — an emerging cardiovascular disease marker which can be identified through a simple blood test and help predict heart disease risk," according to Penny Kris-Etherton, Ph.D., distinguished professor of nutrition at Penn State.

One of the oldest foods, walnuts today are recognized for their flavor, versatility, and health benefits. For more information and recipes, visit www.walnuts.org.

Ag Progress Offers Cooking Demonstrations

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Hourly-food demonstrations in the Family Room Building during Ag Progress Days not only provides up-to-date nutritional information and recipes but also an opportunity to sample the dishes prepared during the workshops.

Richard Kralj, Jefferson County extension nutritionist, taught a workshop of Cooking for the Diabetic. Kralj believes that all foods can be incorporated into a diabetic diet.

"You shouldn't need to change a lot in meal preparation," Kralj said.

The secret is to know what foods raise blood glucose levels and to limit portion sizes in those categories. Fruits, grains, and dairy groups cause the most concern to diabetics.

Kralj warned of the need to be aware of deceptive advertising. Many products claim to be sugar-free may not have added sugar, but will greatly alter blood sugar levels. Fruit pies, in particular, include natural sugar and the pie crust ingredients will elevate blood sugar.

Recent research shows that Splenda, the brand name for sucralose is a sweetener that is safe for all people unlike many artificial sweeteners used by diabetics. Although other sweeteners can be substituted, Kralj said Splenda is a natural sugar that does not have a tart aftertaste.

Whole grain pastas provide better flavor and nutrition according to Kralj. He prepared Chicken Cacciatore over Pasta. Here is the recipe.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE OVER PASTA

16-ounces skinned, boneless chicken breast, cut into pieces

½ cup chopped onion

½ cup chopped green bell pepper

2 cups tomatoes, chopped, drained

1 cup tomato sauce

2 tablespoons Splenda granular sugar

1½ teaspoon Italian seasoning

½ cup sliced ripe olives

½ teaspoon black pepper

3 cups cooked pasta, drained

In a large skillet saute chicken, onion, and green pepper for 6-8 minutes. Stir in undrained tomatoes and tomato sauce.

Add Splenda granular, Italian seasoning, olives, and black pepper. Mix well to combine. Lower heat and simmer 10-15 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Here's a recipe from the Go With Whole Grains Workshop.

1¼ cups sugar

½ cup butter, softened

½ cup peanut butter

¼ cup water

1 tablespoon vanilla

1 egg

1½ cups whole wheat flour

1 cup old-fashioned or quick oats

1 cup raisins

½ teaspoon salt

½ teaspoon baking soda

4 cups Cheerios cereal

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Stir together sugar, butter, peanut butter, water, vanilla, and egg in a large bowl. Stir in remaining ingredients except cereal. Gently stir in cereal.

Drop dough by rounded ¼ cupfuls, 4-inches apart onto an ungreased large cookie sheet. Flatten dough to about one-inch thick.

Bake 13-15 minutes or until golden brown. Let stand 5 minutes before removing from cookie sheet. Store loosely covered.

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map sold extremely well—until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's years of work to a landfill.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

The few remaining copies became prized fisherman's possessions, known to some as the "Lost Stream Map." Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Karl Ings and Larry Seaman of Vivid Publishing, Inc., a Williamsport firm, found new technology that enabled them to reproduce and republish the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Before his death in 1993, Professor Higbee shared his knowledge of map making with Seaman and Ings, and supported the creation of new state stream maps. Stream maps now cover 18 states, New York, Michigan, Ohio, Maryland-Delaware, New Jersey, Northern California, Washington, Colorado, Wisconsin, Virginia, Missouri and 5 New England States. All 50 states will be available by the end of 2003.

Why every angler and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into—there's a sure way to up your odds...simply try new fishing waters. Now, with this map you can find hidden streams and lakes.

Pennsylvania, Ohio, New England, Maryland & Delaware and New York are loaded with great fishing holes...many of them overlooked. Thousands of miles of streams, rivers and lakes are now easy-to-locate on one map.

The 3-foot-by-5-foot Pennsylvania map shows 15,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

The 3-foot-by-3-foot Ohio map shows 29,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

The 3 1/2-foot-by-1 1/2-foot New York map shows 65,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

The 3-foot-by-1-foot New England map shows 36,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

The 2 1/2-foot-by-3-foot New Jersey map shows 8,300 miles of streams plus lakes.

The 3 1/2-foot-by-2-foot Maryland/Delaware map shows 12,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps."
—John Pitarres, OBSERVER-DISPATCH, Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake...then 'Professor Higbee's Stream Maps' are without question the finest."
—Howard Brant, THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman."

Rockspring (Centre Co.) — Exhibits and interactive activities make learning fun for kids during Ag Progress Days.

From Tuesday through Thursday this week, thousands of children participated in activities just for them.

The Kline brothers Jarod, 9; Jacob, 5; and Jesse, 6, participated in the Cow Milking Contest.

"I won first place," Jarod said. He waved a certificate to redeem for a free milkshake while attending the event.

According to employees of Huber Seed, which sponsors the contest, more than 300 certificates are given away each day to winning contestants.

The event helps support the dairy industry promotion, and gives city kids the opportunity to see what it's like to milk a cow and allows retired dairy farmers who remember what it's like to milk a cow retest their skills.

So much to do, and so little time to do it includes the following events:

Shaver's Creek Environmental Center features native wildlife species. The Farm Animal Learning Center has farm animals. ImAGination Station allows visitors to see eggs hatch and much more.

2003 PFGC FALL NEWSLETTER

John Roche is one of two Irish brothers who will share views on untapped grazing potential at the PFGC Grazing Conference March 5 and 6.

Irish Brothers, Genetic Researcher On Slate

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — This year's Pennsylvania Forage and Grazing Conference will take place March 5 and 6 at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

This conference has something for forage producers and graziers at all levels of experience. The conference is sponsored jointly by the PFGC, the Pennsylvania Grazing Research and Education Center, Pennsylvania's Grazing Lands Conservation Initiative and Penn State Extension.

The first day of the conference kicks off with brothers John and Tom Roche. John works as a grazing researcher/consultant in New Zealand, and Tom manages the home dairy farm in Ireland. These brothers have recently been exploring the possibilities of raising a grazing dairy here in the U.S. Over the course of the conference they will discuss hands on experiences as well as differences, similarities, and opportunities of grass farming in the U.S. and around the world.

Other talks on the first day will include topics such as animal genetics for grazing (sure to stimulate discussion) to speediness of equipment and using hay drying keeping records large accurate farm records large rectangular bale storage and marketing and health concerns of animals on pasture.

Dr. Steve Washburn from North Carolina State University will be leading the discussion on animal genetics for grazing. The evening of the first day will include discussion sessions between attendees and speakers.

The second day of the conference starts with a look at grazing and family life impact of the farm bill and new regulations on forage and grazing farms and pasture maintenance. Presentations include recognizing the challenges of grass-fed beef farmer health concerns and farm liability. The day continues with a presentation by the Roche brothers on grazing opportunities in the Northeast. The conference will conclude with a brief wrap up session and awarding of door prizes.

Producers will give many of the presentations during the two day conference.

The PFGC will conduct its annual reception and awards program Wednesday evening followed by informal discussions with the day's presenters.

The conference will also include a trade show, with corn

OLEY (Berks Co.) — Nevin Mast has been crossbreeding Holsteins and Jerseys for about 10 years.

"I just like the cross so well," the dairyman said during a pasture walk on his organically certified farm last September.

Mast hosted about a dozen farmers who were interested in seeing his grazing operation. Joining the group was Mena Hantao, Berks County extension agent, and Dr. Steve Washburn, a dairy researcher from North Carolina State University.

Grass and hay are the main source of feed for the 50 cows on Mast's 110-acre farm. He supplements milking cows with 12-14 pounds of grain per day. Heifers between the age of four months and their first calving receive no grain.

Advantages of the Holstein/Jersey cross include easier breeding and calving, hybrid vigor, and greater survival according to Mast and Washburn.

The biggest gains are in the survivability traits, said Washburn, who studies the benefits of crossbreeding in dairy herds. He predicted that crossbreeds will have an increasing impact on commercial dairy production in the future.

Washburn is one of the speakers slated for the upcoming Pennsylvania Forage and Grazing Conference scheduled for March 5 and 6 in Grantville.

A typical average first-conception rate for purebred Holsteins when using artificial insemination is between 30 and 40 percent. In crossbreeds that number can reach nearly 50 percent, according to Washburn.

Washburn said dairy farmers need to have a plan when it comes to crossbreeding. The plan should include research into the fertility of the daughters.

ters of bulls used in the cross breeding program and knowing the bulls' production data. While hardiness and reproductive traits are important, production must be a primary goal.

As Washburn put it, "Milk still pays the bills."

In crossbred cows production levels tend toward the higher producing breed he noted.

While Jersey and Holstein genetics make up the main part of the gene pool on Mast's farm, he also enjoys experimenting with different types of crossbreeding. For example, Mast said he recently purchased a White Park bull to breed to some of his heifers to breed to some of his heifers QUESTION — Nicolette Wagman, Seven Valleys, is doing research for a book about musical instruments and makers in York County. She wants information and photographs of instruments and their makers from any era. Call her at (717) 428-1856.

QUESTION Shirley Schwoerner, Wysox, writes that some time ago she had clipped an answer in this column from Joyce Raubenstine who told how to make creams from aloe vera. The instructions were unclear, and she asks if someone can tell her the exact amount of aloe vera to use. The directions she has are as follows: To prepare a herb ointment or salve, crush the leaves of the aloe vera and mix with four parts melted fat (lard or shortening) and one part dry white wine. Heat gently for 20 minutes. Cool slightly and strain.

Shirley writes that her husband's chronic back problem was aggravated during haymaking. She rubbed aloe vera leaves on his back, and it helped instantly. He was amazed. It was a sloppy procedure, so they'd like to make the salve if possible.

Shirley adds a bit of humor by writing that she can't boil water without a 3x5 card, "so you can see my problem with the aloe vera (instructions)."

QUESTION — Kenneth Wirtz, White Hall, Md., is having trouble finding replacement parts for his electric three-point hitch that is on a 10HP Sears garden tractor purchased in 1977. The parts are no longer available through Sears. The item is Model number 917.253130 electric 3-point hitch. Wirtz would appreciate hearing from someone who no longer uses the part. He doesn't need the complete hitch, just the power assist lift. He is willing to pay a fair price for the item. Call him at (410) 329-2175.

QUESTION — Sharon Heller writes that they have 75 acres in Perry County. About half of the acreage is mowed by a neighbor who sells the 1/2 ton mixed hay rolls for his own profit. She wants to know how to find an average rental for the acreage. What is the best way to advertise the available acreage?

QUESTION — Marie Hixson, Crystal Spring, wants to know how to grow wild rice. They live on a farm with some wet areas that she believes would be suitable for growing rice. Anyone know where she can find information?

QUESTION — Warren Glidewell, Bloomsburg, wants to know where to find Flemish giant rabbits in a fawn color.

QUESTION — C. Gutshall, Carlisle, is looking for proper cleaning instructions for printed cotton seed sacks made in the 1940s. She also would like a Web site address that offers information on older cotton and burlap feed sacks.

ANSWER — Mary Sasscer, Maryland, reports that four people responded to her request for a Dick and Jane reader that dates back to about 1943-1944, and contained a story about a neighbor who was restoring an old rocking horse, which was white with dapple spots on the rump and the platform was red.

ANSWER — C. Faus, Hergins, wanted to know how to store raw vegetables such as carrots, squash, kohlrabi, and more to store for winter use. Richard Cook, Friendsville, recommends purchasing the book, "Keeping the Harvest, Home Storage of Vegetables and Fruit," available from Cumberland General Store, 1 Highway 68, Crossville, Tenn. 38555.

Thanks to Joel Gilmore, Newark, N.Y., for sending the following information:

If your garden has been even moderately successful, you're sure to be harvesting more vegetables than you can, and your freezer is full, it's time to start thinking about storing for future use. When frost threatens, and it will be here before you know it, you will suddenly have an overabundance to deal with.

Different vegetables require different storage conditions and keep for varying lengths of time. Certain general rules, however, apply to all:

- Vegetables should be mature or nearly mature at harvest.

- They should be free of all visible evidence of disease or severe insect damage.

- They should be handled carefully to avoid the cuts and bruises that increase the likelihood of mold or bacterial decay in storage.

They should be harvested prior to any severe or chilling frost. Even a light frost may cause invisible damage that will keep them from storing well.

Where are you going to find these storage conditions? Consider one or more of the following possibilities.

Storage Locations

Refrigeration: An extra refrigerator is ideal for storing small quantities of vegetables requiring cold or cool, moist conditions. If it's a manual defrost model, so much the better, it will be easier to regulate the temperature. Armed with a thermometer and the knowledge that the temperature in the crisper is 3 degrees colder than the upper level, you should be able to provide optimum conditions.

The relative humidity is about 40 percent to 50 percent in the refrigerator, more in the crisper. That humidity can be increased by washing the vegetables, putting them into plastic bags with two to four inch holes for ventilation, and closing with plastic ties. The cold surface of the plastic bags causes the water vapor inside the bag to condense.

Insulated Cooler: A plastic foam cooler, or a box constructed of expanded polystyrene sheets, will also serve if kept outside in a sheltered area, such as an enclosed porch. If the box is kept full, the vegetables will keep each other from freezing. They are living things, even after being separated from the plants, and will continue to generate and give off heat from their respiration as long as they are alive. Again, as above, use ventilated plastic bags for humidity.

Basement: For long term storage of vegetables in a basement that has a furnace, you will need to partition off a room and insulate it. Pick the north or east side, if possible, in an area that includes a window, no heating ducts or pipes. Putting in removable slatted flooring will keep the vegetables off the floor, help the air circulate, and allow you to use water or wet material (such as dampened sawdust) underneath to increase the humidity. The room can be kept cool by opening the window on cool nights and closing it on warm days. Be sure to have a screen to keep out animals and insects and a shade to keep out light.

In-Ground Container: You can bury a galvanized garbage can upright, leaving four inches above ground level. This will keep potatoes, beets, carrots, and turnips through the winter. Keep them in perforated plastic bags of a convenient size for use. Choose a well drained site, and dig a ditch around to divert surface water. Cover the can lid with straw and waterproof canvas or plastic.

Birthplace: Leave them in the ground. Beets, carrots, kohlrabi, turnips, radishes, rutabagas, parsnips, and horseradish can be left in the ground right where they grow. When there's a good frost — a crusting of the ground — in late November or early December, cover them with a two-foot layer of oak leaves (not maple), straw, or coarse hay. Only use non-packing materials. (One enterprising man we know collects the bags of leaves his neighbors have put out for pickup.) Then cover with burlap. Be sure to mark the area with stakes, or you'll never find what you want when everything's covered with snow. If you've mulched properly, vegetables shouldn't freeze. If, by chance, they should be frozen, take out only what you'll cook the same day; they won't keep in the refrigerator.

Curing: Some vegetables need to be cured before storing at their optimum temperature.

Potatoes: After harvest, hold them in moist air for a week or two at 60 degrees to 75 degrees. Wounds do not heal at 50 degrees or below. They will then keep for several months to cool, moist conditions. Be sure to store them in the dark to keep them from turning green. Stored potatoes tend to become sweet, but if you hold them at about 70 degrees for a week or so before using them, they'll return to normal.

Home Storage of Fruits

Apples: Late maturing varieties of apples will store for use throughout the winter if the fruit is hard, mature, and in perfect condition. Apples picked too green are subject to a number of storage disorders, such as scald and bitter pit; if picked beyond maturity, they quickly become overripe in storage.

Cool as quickly as possible after harvest for best results. For most varieties of apples, the optimum storage temperature is 30 degrees to 32 degrees with a 90 percent relative humidity. Higher storage temperatures reduce the storage life considerably, as apples ripen twice as fast at 40 degrees as at 32 degrees. Apples can be stored outdoors in insulated boxes or straw lined pits or buried in containers as long as the outside temperatures are above 10 degrees. They will last longer and retain more flavor if kept in a fruit cellar in plastic bags or in cardboard boxes lined with plastic sheets. The cardboard box and plastic bags or liners must be perforated to allow air circulation. If the fruits are individually wrapped in tissue paper or newspaper before being placed in boxes or baskets, you will achieve better results. Plastic liners help maintain high humidity and prevent the apples from being affected by the surrounding air. The balance of humidity is subtle; excess humidity will encourage decay, and insufficient humidity will encourage shrivelling.

Avoid storing apples too long and check regularly for signs of spoilage. Mustiness will spread to healthy specimens. When spoilage or withering becomes a problem, the apples can be preserved by canning techniques. The storage duration depends on the variety.

Grapes: Grapes can be stored as whole fruit in a cellar for four to six weeks. Storage can be useful to hold the fruit until processing as juice or wine can be accomplished or to extend the time they can be eaten as table grapes. Grapes will readily absorb odors from other fruits; keep them away from other produce if possible. They can be stored in cardboard boxes, or crates lined with a layer of clean, dry straw. Pack bunches no more than two or three layers deep and place straw or sawdust between each bunch. Check often for spoilage.

ANSWER — Cindy Eshleman, R.3, Box 7957, Jonestown, PA 17038, wants to know what day of the week the Selingsgrove Horse Sale is conducted. Thanks to Maxine Klingler, Selingsgrove, who recommends she call Middleburg Livestock Auction Sales at (570) 837-2222. The auction address is Route 522, P.O. Box 185, Middleburg, PA 17842.

Another reader wrote that he presumes Cindy is referring to Middleburg Livestock Auction located on Rt.522. The auction conducts a horse sale the last Saturday of every month.

ANSWER — Mike White, Bernville, wanted to know what to do about birds pulling up corn plants. Thanks to Roy Wright, Newville, who said he successfully used a product call Crow-Fox, which is a coal-tar liquid. A farm supply store should know where to purchase it or a similar product.

ANSWER — Dick Herring wanted to know where to find railroad ties. Thanks to a reader who wrote that railroad ties are available from Reese Services, 9486 Buchanan Trail, (Pa. Rt. 16) Mercersburg, PA 17236. Phone (717) 328-3211. The private contractor has everything from new to well-used ties from the standard 8-foot to 12-14-foot sizes (used in laying switches).

Reese Services is located across the road from the intersection of Pa. Rt. 416 S. off Pa. 16 near Mercersburg.

These Canes Are Made For Walking

LOU ANN GOOD
Features Editor*

PALMYRA (Dauphin Co.) — Some people need a cane to walk. Although Enos Heisey is in his 80s and has 26 canes, he doesn't require one to walk.

His cane collection does not include mass-produced or factory-made ones, but those Heisey collected in visiting 57 countries around the world.

A former Agway director, and Farm Bureau director of members and public relations director for 13 northeastern states, Heisey also attained his auctioneer's license, and in 1965 lead his first People to People Agricultural Delegation. President Dwight Eisenhower had founded People to People International to promote global understanding. The delegation's purpose was to improve the understanding between ag people.

In 1967 Krushchev stomped around the Midwest and said his country could grow bigger corn in the USSR.

"They had larger machinery than we had, that's for sure," Heisey said. "But we had been there and knew their corn was nothing to brag about."

In the 1960s, Russia was still considered a world power and the enemy. So was China, another country the group visited.

Heisey led 13 ag delegations to different countries. Each delegation included about 35 people.

"It was considered a bit dangerous," Heisey said of some of the visits, but very interesting.

Belgium, Switzerland, New Zealand, Australia, Kenya, Ethiopia, and Greece were some of the other spots where Heisey led People to People delegations.

A pointed metal tip and handle makes this cane look more like a weapon than a walking aid. But the metal tip is to puncture ice and snow when walking during frigid winters. This cane was purchased during Enos Heisey's visit to Poland as part of Volunteers in Overseas Cooperative Assistance (VOCA), a Washington-based, nonprofit organization that gives technical assistance to needy countries. VOCA is part of the USDA program to help farmers in other countries understand the switch from Communism to free enterprise.

Canes come in all sizes, shapes, and woods. Here are a few of Heisey's favorites. Recently his collection was showcased in the lobby of Lebanon Valley Brethren Home, Palmyra.

The world has changed since then. And the trips are only memories for Heisey and his wife Jane who reside at a Lebanon County Retirement village. But Heisey has canes.

He said, "I started collecting a cane from each country that I visited. It was often hard to find a cane. I didn't want just any one, not a mass produced one or machine made."

He wanted a handcrafted work of art such as some of his favorites. One of those had been made in Western Australia of Australian oak with a leather engraved handle, and another one from Costa Rica combines 10 rare woods.

When he was in Florida, Heisey attended a benefit auction where he bid $850 on a hand-carved cane fashioned by Abe Yoder, Ohio. But someone outbid him and Heisey didn't get the cane. A few years later when traveling to Ohio, Heisey found one just like it for less than $50. The cane has 422 pieces of inlaid wood.

During the month of July, Heisey's collection of canes were featured in a display case at the Lebanon Retirement Home. Each cane was neatly labeled with the country of origin and the materials used if known.

The novelty and variety from something as simple as a cane provides hours of examination from those who share fascination with collecting.

These included a natural chestnut cane from England, a colorful handcrafted cane from Mexico with engraved Indian chiefs and other folklore symbols, and a cane fashioned with inlaid rosewood made by Paul D. Showalter, Chambersburg.

One of Heisey's son whom Heisey calls a fanatical Cockshutt collector presented him with a cane made from grapevines and painted the color of a Cockshutt tractor.

Heisey doesn't make canes but he does make walking sticks, which he presents to many friends and acquaintances. He fashions each one from a sumac vine and coats it with clear marine varnish for heavy duty use.

A walking stick, Heisey said, should reach the height of the chest of the person using it. A cane should come to the pocket of the person who can grasp it with their elbow slightly bent.

With his cane display, Heisey posts this poem by Blands Purcell, "If your step is faltering and you're suffering pain, take my advice: Use a cane, stand tall, act proud and distinguishable. Soon everyone will believe you truly are."

A walking stick, Heisey said, should reach the height of the chest of the person using it. A cane should come to the pocket of the person who can grasp it with their elbow slightly bent.

Tim and Anne Bock, Kutztown certified organic and field crop growers, examine this 1911 potato sprayer on display.

Before Computers Before Electricity Before Engines

Rockspring (Centre Co.) — What was life like before computers, electricity, and engines?

Visitors at Ag Progress had the chance to see many everyday items needed to conduct life on the farm. The Pasto Agricultural Museum was open during the three-day Ag Progress event this week. In addition to the museum, a tent housed part of the antique farm equipment on display.

A magnificent collection of meat processing artifacts brought back memories for the older generation and helped the younger generation catch a glimpse of early agriculture.

Tom King, museum guide and former professor at the College of Agriculture, remembers butchering hogs on the family farm. As a professor he used the textbook, "The Meat We Eat," a manual on home curing meats written by P. Thomas Ziegler.

King said, "This was a classic textbook used in universities across the nation. I used it in my teaching."

King said a large wooden trough on display was used as a scalding vat for hogs. Meat processing artifacts included a butcher's box of knives, cleavers, saws, and other items.

The museum is open for tours by appointment from April through October. For more information, call (814) 863-1383.

Old Beadwork Made To Wear Or Display

Almost a lost art form, beadwork objects are gaining interest among collectors as well as being revived as a craft.

Examples go far back in history. Cleopatra is known to have had a beaded glass necklace. Glass beads are more than baubles. Over the centuries they were used to gussy up clothing and decorate such utilitarian objects as trays and firescreens.

Glassmaking centers were established all over Europe by the late 16th century. In the mid-18th century there were more than 200 bead firms in Venice alone.

Tubular shaped, they are now referred to as bugles.

What became known as "Stuart beadwork" in England from 1630 to 1680 was a popular craft where it was used to decorate such varied objects as mirror frames and baskets as well as clothing.

In 18th century France beaded designs were used to decorate small pieces of furniture such as candlestands. The designs were works of art in mosaic patterns as well as scenes with buildings, animals, and people.

By the early 19th century beaded designs for larger decorative pieces were made on looms. Murals depicting various scenes were often framed as art. Many turn up at auction for a few hundred dollars.

It wasn't until the early 19th century that the very small beads known as seed beads were made. New manufacturing techniques allowed them to be mass produced. As beaded purses, they became a fashion that lasted into the early 20th century.

Beadwork embroidery became a craft-craze for Victorian ladies by the mid-19th century. Just about anything with a fabric covering was transformed from ordinary to beaded elegance at that time. Among the most novel uses I've come across is a dressing table set, combining velvet with beads. Book covers and pin cushions still turn up at estate sales. The quaint pin cushions were in a variety of shapes, including a Victorian ladies boot. The beads were strung and sewn onto a paper pattern, and then onto flannel or velvet.

The beads were made in Czechoslovakia, an important glass-making country at that time.

Delicate flowers and flower baskets were also made. Tiny glass beads were strung on fine wires. They were also turned into hat pins and pin-on jewelry. In 1865 Godey's Ladies Book had published flower patterns that beaded flowers could also be used as decorations for hair and on clothing. Surprisingly many of these beaded flowers have survived.

Around the end of the 19th century a tribe of Native Americans in the Niagara Falls area made beaded bags and pin cushions. These pieces are backed with shiny cotton cambric.

CLUES: You can date some of the 19th century beadwork by examining the designs and the bead colors. In England, flower designs were used by 1830. One of the most popular designs was the rose. The earlier colors were rose, amber, turquoise-blue, and green. In the 1880's gray, dark green, and dark red were used.

Hundreds of miser purses were made. They open into a slit for coins to be inserted. So were wristbands; flat panels made with small beads. They were hand woven on a loom.

During the 1940s, bead baskets were once again a popular craft.

However, the beads were large and the look different than the antique versions.

Beaded flowers have never stopped being made. Beautiful beaded small purses from the 1920s-1930s still show up at estate sales, along with those made in the 1970s.

There are many books on bead embroidery for research.

THE RUTH EASTERDAY AUCTION OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

To be held at the Washington County Circuit Court House, Washington St., Hagerstown, Maryland

TUES., SEPT. 16, 2003 AT 3:00 P.M.

NOTICE: Having taken residence with family we will offer for sale for the trustees the following real estate

The Real Estate with improvements is located in Washington County's 16th Election District at 21460 Greenbriar Road and includes a land area of approximately 41.38 acres +/-, which is better described at Liber 1602, Folio 876 of the County land records

Improvements include a beautiful masonry two story home c 1932 which consists of a double living room, dine-in country kitchen, five bedrooms, and two full baths. There is also an attic and a full basement area with outside entrance as well as an inside entrance. The home has three covered porches.
Heat is provided to the home by steam hot water. Water is provided by a well and a septic provides for the sewage. A nice flowing stream is located on the property as well as a large bank barn. There is also a nice wash-house and smokehouse on the property. This home is in exceptional condition with many updates within the last five years. The land is mostly tillable with approximately five acres of mature timber.

Inspection of the Real Estate may be made by contacting the trustees at 301-739-9468 or 301-790-0437 for an appointment.

All terms of sale will be announced at time of auction. Terms announced day of sale take precedence over prior advertisement.

TERMS OF THE REAL ESTATE: Includes a non refundable deposit of $25,000.00 in certified funds in the form of cash or certified check.
Possession at time of final settlement one half of the documentary stamps and transfer fees are to be paid by the purchaser, with taxes and utilities prorated to date of settlement. Settlement to be made within 45 days. The sale is subject only to the acceptance of the trustees. No Buyer's Premium.
The agricultural transfer tax shall be the responsibility of the purchaser if applicable.

Delaware Township Farm - 12:00 noon

93 beautiful, rolling acres in Delaware Township, Juniata County erected thereon a two-story, four-bedroom frame farmhouse with 3-sided wrap-around porch, double living room with open stairway, very large modern eat-in kitchen with oak cabinetry, full bath downstairs, 8' ceilings, hardwood floors, paneled doors and original woodwork. This home has an oil hot water heating system, full concrete basement, outside cellar entrance, drilled well, on-site sewage, full attic with dormers and a shower in the basement. Outbuildings include a bank barn, an old summer house, 1-story frame chicken house, early log 1-room house, frame pig pen and a frame pump house. There are 60 acres of very productive heavy loamy sandy gravelly tillable soil and 33 acres woodland with standing marketable hardwood timber and a spring-fed stream. This lovely property offers privacy and seclusion but is close to churches, schools, and stores, also has very high potential for development.

Held at Farmers Livestock Exchange
Winchester, Virginia

Over 100 head will sell.

- Spring Cow/Calf Pairs • Fall Pairs • Bred Heifers
- Bred Cows • Service Age Bulls • Commercial Females

The influence of this extremely popular and balanced performance sire runs deep in the Holly Hill program. B/R New Design 036 has no equal among proven AI sires for offering low birth, high growth and excellent maternal traits with unsurpassed carcass genetics on both the carcass and ultrasound sire summary.

The Holly Hill program is based on performance Angus genetics and this offering will feature females who offer tremendous production records and are backed by the breed's most prominent AI sires.

Great Plains Mfg. Inc. introduces its 130-inch and 170-inch in-line ripper.

Sub-Soiler Extends Vertical Tillage Lineup

SALINA, Kan. — The Sub-Soiler is another step in the evolution of Great Plains' vertical tillage family, designed to eliminate the compaction created by horizontal tillage tools such as discs and sweep equipped implements.

The simplest form of implements used today to loosen and destroy those yield robbing and moisture rejecting compaction layers is the in-line sub-soiler. Don't let this simplicity lead you to think that the Great Plains 1300 and 1700 In-line Sub-Soiler are just another "me too" product.

They've "raised the bar" for the competition by using high tensile strength tubing with thicker walls.

They've developed their own unique no-till point, shank, and wear shin, which is equipped 3/4-inch wide spring steel shank that minimizes surface disturbance while shattering more of the subsoil structure.

Great Plains also offers a 1 1/4-inch wide straight leg shank with 2-inch, 5-inch, and 7-inch winged points that are progressively more aggressive on the topsoil structure, as well as, deep below the surface.

Case IH Magnum Tractors Celebrate Milestone

RACINE, Wis. — Proven performance in the field leads to customer loyalty at the dealership as evidenced by the upcoming production highlight for the Case IH Magnum™ tractor line. The 100,000th Magnum will roll off the line at CNH Racine Manufacturing Operations later this year.

To celebrate, select dealers and customers will be eligible for free demo time in the latest Case IH MX Series Magnum models. After the demos are complete, the specially designated and decaled units will be available for purchase.

Drew Fletcher, product specialist for Case IH tractors, said the company is pleased to be able to honor not only the Magnum line, but also the people that have showcased its workhorse performance in the field.

"We have loyal customers that purchased an original 7100 Series Magnum when it came out in 1987, an 8900 Series tractor introduced in 1997 and a tractor from the most recent MX Series Magnum line," Fletcher said. "Some customers are still running all three. We anticipate that our program to celebrate our 100,000 milestone will get a good number of Case IH customers and prospects behind the wheel of the tractors."

A tractor family cannot continue 16 years without significant improvements, and the latest models in the Case IH MX

Milestone For Case IH MX255 Magnum Tractor.

Series Magnum line up are no exception, Fletcher notes. Desire for increased power and efficiency constantly top the list of customer demands.

In 1987, the top rated horsepower of the 7100 Series Magnum was 215 PTO hp. In 2003 the top horsepower for the MX285 Magnum tractor is up to 240 PTO hp.

Increased horsepower doesn't necessarily translate to higher fuel usage. New designs and new technologies, including electronic engine management systems, have advanced engine efficiency.

"We've been able to get a bump of up to 10 horsepower on our current models due to updated ISO-mounted engines that deliver 46 percent torque rise at 2,000 rpm," Fletcher said. "Lower operating rpms while providing rated horsepower levels lead to greater fuel efficiency. We're constantly looking for ways to convert even more of

WestfaliaSurge Introduces New Generation Of Rotary Parlors

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — WestfaliaSurge has introduced the next generation of rotary technology to their long-established Autorotor line.

The new WestfaliaSurge Magnum Autorotor parlor offers the same proven Autorotor benefits of faster cow flow, energy efficiency, labor reduction, and reliability, but adds some important new product improvements.

One of the most important enhancements is a new milker unit control arm (patent pending). This automated arm keeps the milker unit out of the way during loading and prep phases, then, at a pre-set time, brings the milker unit up to the operator for quick and easy placement on the udder. At the end of milking the arm retracts the milker unit and safely lowers it out of the way.

The new milker unit control arm improves operator efficiency and comfort, properly positions the milker unit on the udders, keeps the retract chain away from the cow's legs, manages milk and pulsation hoses during milk, retract and wash, and also keeps the milker unit cleaner.

Another key feature of the new Magnum Autorotor is a new variable-speed, heavy-duty hydraulic drive system that delivers higher performance, quieter operation and longer life. Unlike rotary parlors with electric drives, there's no high voltage near the cows. Attached to the drive system are new drive wheels that provide superior traction and longer operating life. Speed and direction of the platform is easily monitored and changed from a newly designed control panel.

WestfaliaSurge also redesigned the milking platform on the new Magnum Autorotor. The deck is supported by a low-maintenance nylon roller carriage system. Unlike support systems with metal wheels, the Magnum Autorotor roller carriage system uses no bearings that can wear out, and never needs lubrication. As with previous Autorotor models, the platform uses reinforced concrete, which means better durability and surer footing for cows.

According to Rob Kolb, vice president, WestfaliaSurge marketing, "The new Magnum Autorotor is the next revolution in rotary technology. We've taken the same proven WestfaliaSurge Autorotor advantages such as fast and stress-free entry and exit, and enhanced them with designs for even smoother cow flow. In addition, the milker unit control arm adds efficiency, operator comfort and milker unit support...all three very important factors."

U.S. Cattlemen Will Not Negotiate Changes To Mexican Beef Trade

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Cattlemen's Beef Association's (NCBA) Chief Economist Gregg Doud is back in Washington after meeting with U.S. and Mexican trade officials in Mexico City. The meetings were called to discuss the status of pending Mexican beef trade issues.

"Currently, the U.S. exports more beef to Mexico than any other country in the world," explains Doud.

Doud notes that due to the major elections coming up in Mexico this July, various parties involved appear to be attempting to pull beef export, import and other agricultural issues into a Mexican political cross-fire.

"We are concerned that some are attempting to prompt changes in our relationship under the auspices of this election. When talking with the Mexican government officials, they could neither confirm nor deny that any trade dispute related to beef was forthcoming.

What does NCBA say to this? There will be no negotiating changes to the beef trading relationship with Mexico that are detrimental to U.S. cattlemen, period," says Doud, "It's that simple."

The tariff rate on beef trade between the U.S. and Mexico has been zero since 1994. But, a very high tariff is currently imposed on a select number of U.S. companies exporting beef to Mexico.

U.S. beef exports to Mexico have grown at a steady rate over the last eight years from 42,000 metric tons of fresh, frozen, and processed beef in 1995 to 350,000 metric tons of beef and beef variety meats in 2002. This is 12 percent more than in 2001, at a value of $854.3 million.

"This trading relationship that has developed over the past ten years or so is a prime example of the importance of building valuable export markets. The long term forecast for the growth of U.S. beef exports to Mexico is promising, thanks to their growing population and expanding economy," says Doud.

In 2002, the U.S. share of Mexico's beef import market was 80 percent.

U.S. Pork Exports Set Record In 2002

DES MOINES, Iowa — In 2002, U.S. pork exports set another export record, strengthened by the efforts of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) to expedite new trade initiatives through Congress.

Pork exports totaled 726,484 metric tons (MT) valued at $1.504 billion. Exports to Japan, the largest market for U.S. pork exports, increased 5 percent to 271,129 MT. Exports to Mexico, the second largest destination for U.S. pork, also continue to grow increasing by 7 percent from 2001 levels to 217,909 MT.

While the dollar weakened somewhat in 2002, U.S. pork continues to compete against exports from Brazil and Canada, two countries with very weak currencies relative to the dollar — which makes the export performance of U.S. pork all the more impressive, noted NPPC.

Much of growth in U.S. pork exports is directly attributable to new and expanded market access. However, as the benefits from the Uruguay Round and NAFTA begin to diminish, the negotiation of new trade agreements becomes paramount to the continued growth and profitability of U.S. pork producers, according to NPPC.

For this reason, NPPC led a coalition of more than 80 U.S. agriculture organizations in working to get Trade Promotion Authority through the U.S. Congress last year.

With that victory in hand, NPPC is involved in the WTO agriculture negotiations. The potential payoff to producers is high, according to NPPC.

the energy expended into production tasks."

Customers also are demanding lighter equipment footprints and reduced compaction.

The MX285 is 3,100 pounds heavier than the 7150 Magnum, but its footprint is eight percent lighter due to improved tires and setup.

Global pork tariffs average 77 percent. Even in Japan — America's largest pork export market — U.S. pork exports are severely limited because of a gate price system and safeguards designed to protect Japanese producers.

Moreover, the U.S. pork industry must compete globally with subsidized pork from the European Union and other countries, noted NPPC. NPPC is working hard to overcome these impediments.

In addition, NPPC continues to be active in bilateral and regional trade negotiations. While the WTO negotiations clearly offer the single largest opportunity to increase exports, the bilateral and regional negotiations also offer opportunity, according to NPPC.

NPPC has used the initiation of FTA negotiations with Australia to highlight that country's unfounded barriers to U.S. pork exports.

Late last year, NPPC succeeded in getting tariffs on pork and pork products in Chile reduced to zero immediately — with no phase-in period — when the U.S.-Chile FTA becomes effective. Perhaps more importantly, NPPC succeeded in having a parallel U.S.-Chile sanitary and phytosanitary working group set up alongside the FTA negotiations, noted NPPC. As a result of this working group, Chile is expected to soon remove a longstanding non-tariff barrier and approve the shipment of pork from all USDA-approved facilities. NPPC noted this will be an important precedent heading into FTA negotiations with other countries.

As exports to Mexico continue to increase, the importance of maintaining access to that market becomes more pronounced, according to NPPC.

Mexico initiated a dumping case against U.S. pork exports on Jan. 7. NPPC is working, both legally and politically, to get the dumping case terminated.

Cut faster... condition better

For greater maneuverability and higher efficiency, nothing beats the Model 1431 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner from New Holland. It features a 13' cutting width, and operates at high ground speeds in wet, heavy grass without plugging. Fire anthills and gopher mounds won't stop the new Model 1431 either.

Outstanding features include:

- A center pivot-tongue design
- Independent modular cutterbar with ten small-diameter cutting discs
- 102" wide conditioning rolls
- A full range of vertical and lateral flotation
- A torsion-bar, roll-pressure system
- A cutterbar driven from both ends

For maximum harvesting efficiency, check out the Model 1431 Discbine.

It's the best in the field and it's in stock now!

CASE IIIKRAUSE DISCS ARE BUILT TO LAST.*3 SOLID REASONS TO INVEST IN A DEPENDABLE KRAUSE DISC FOR YOUR FARM*The Original Rockflex Disc

Krause engineered the first "Rockflex" disc in 1965. Krause 7300 & 7400 discs are built tough and incorporate Rockflex bearing arms that protect your disc in all types of soil and field conditions

Durability

Krause 7300 & 7400 discs are built from a foundation of structural steel strength and are ready to take on years of your toughest tillage. The frames are backed with a full three-year limited warranty, so you can be confident in the durability of Krause.

Resale Value

Krause 7300 & 7400 discs are built with quality components, and no disc on the market today maintains its value better than a Krause disc. When you go to sales to watch a disc sell, you'll find out that Krause discs always bring top dollar

Hoober has Krause rockflex discs in stock from 18' to 31'

MF 4300 Series Tractors

THRIVES ON VARIETY.

This morning, you cleared the back 40. After lunch, you plowed that new field. Before you know it, it'll be time to spread manure or cut and bale or any one of a million other things. You do it all, and MF 4300 Series tractors are versatile enough to do it all with you. Six innovative models in the 55- 90 hp range all feature tough Perkins engines, PowerShuttle transmissions with MF's unique Comfort Control dial, and optional electronic linkage control, for the versatile, sophisticated performance you need. Come by today, and test drive the tractor that does one thing well: everything.

WE DO!! At CFS we are committed to providing the very best repair and maintenance service available. Our techs attend continued training sessions to keep up with the constantly changing technology of today's machines. We can provide "ON FARM" or "IN HOUSE" repairs on your CASE IH, CASE, or IH equipment. We provide loaner programs and are proud to say we are one of the very few dealers providing "NO CHARGE" warranty service. Visit us at the CASE IH booth at AG Progress Days.

AGCO TRACTORS

RIGHT-SIZE YOUR TRACTOR FLEET...

IS ONE OR TEN.

Introducing the AGCO GT Series - an all-new 45 to 73 PTO HP series designed exactly right to meet your needs - when a compact tractor doesn't have the lift you need and the larger mid-size is a bigger investment than you want to make. Whatever your farming application - specialty crops, loader work, hay making - an AGCO GT might be just right for you. Off the farm, a GT provides the power, dependability and dealer backing you want to make your customers happy and your bottomline brighter.

GT45 • GT55 • GT65 • GT75

All four models are available with 2 or 4 wheel drive and in both platform or cab styles

In stock: • GT 45 4WD Cab • GT 75 4WD Cab

PUT A BAT IN YOUR BARN BATWING 3180 - SPINDLE MOWER

The Woods model 3180 is the toughest Batwing® mower we've ever built. A "clean deck" design that resists cut material build-up, innovative Intra-Drive™ gearboxes engineered and built by Woods, and the fastest blade speeds of any mower in its class. The 3180 Batwing® cuts through brush, up to three inches in diameter. A blade overlap of over six inches, and you have a mower that delivers a quality cut, without streaking. From its heavy-gauge deckplate to its heavy-duty drivelines, we build the 3180 to last. What's more, they come complete with a 36-month gearbox warranty.

Seeking An Edge Over Cattle Diseases Through DNA Sequencing

AMES, Iowa — Agricultural Research Service scientists in Ames, Iowa, hope chromosome sequencing is the key that unlocks doors leading to new tests and vaccines for cattle diseases.

Researchers at the Bacterial Diseases of Livestock Research Unit, part of the National Animal Disease Center (NADC) in Ames, used a DNA sequence analyzer and collaborated with the University of Minnesota (U-M) to sequence the chromosomes of microbes that cause Johne's disease and bovine brucellosis.

In addition, the sequencing of an agent that causes leptospirosis — a project being done completely within the unit — has entered the final phase.

The analyzer, operated by ARS veterinary medical officer David Alt, allows unit scientists to perform almost 800 reactions a day. It can automatically analyze multiple runs of 96 DNA samples, making unattended 24-hour operation possible.

Automated sequencing allows for rapid analysis of an organism's genes, speeding identification of those linked to superior characteristics — or to negative traits, such as susceptibility to disease.

Sequencing of Mycobacterium paratuberculosis, a microbe that causes Johne's disease, was led by ARS microbiologist John Bannantine and U-M pathogenomics scientist Vivek Kapur.

Johne's is an intestinal disorder characterized by diarrhea and weight loss in infected cattle. It is found in seven percent of beef herds and 22 percent of dairy herds nationwide.

ARS microbiologist Shirley Halling and Kapur led sequencing work on Brucella abortus. That microbe causes bovine brucellosis, a highly contagious bacterial disease that induces late-term abortions and infertility in cows, as well as undulant fever in humans.

The sequencing of Leptospira borgpetersenii serovar hardjo, a cause of leptospirosis, is being led by ARS microbiologist Richard Zuerner.

Leptospirosis causes abortions, stillbirths and weak offspring in cattle and swine, and it can reduce milk production in cows. It also affects many other animals, including dogs.

New Vaccine To Fight Salmonella In Eggs

Lancaster Farming, Saturday, August 23, 2003-D3

ATHENS, Ga. — Developing an oil emulsion vaccine to reduce the possibility of Salmonella enteritidis entering chicken eggs is the aim of scientists at the Agricultural Research Service's Southeast Poultry Research Laboratory in Athens, Ga.

Immunologist Peter Holt, retired veterinarian Henry Stone and immunochemist Cam Greene have developed an oil emulsion vaccine of inactivated S. enteritidis that protected hens exposed to the organism.

Hens infected with Salmonella can transmit the organism into their eggs. People who eat infected eggs can get salmonellosis, a disease characterized by nausea, vomiting and severe diarrhea.

In studies at Athens, birds were vaccinated twice and then exposed to S. enteritidis. The new vaccine reduced S. enteritidis shedding in the birds' feces by 10 to 40 percent. A patent for the vaccine has been filed and is available for licensing.

The experimental oil emulsion vaccine is more effective than commercial vaccines because it boosts levels of antibodies that the hens produce to fight the infection, reducing S. enteritidis inside their intestines.

This, in turn, decreases the chance that the bacterium will spread further through the birds' bodies, or that it will be shed in their feces.

An improved vaccine that reduces Salmonella shedding would be helpful to the poultry industry, since this is the primary method by which Salmonella infection spreads through a flock. Vaccinating poultry flocks against Salmonella is an important practice within the industry today.

Approximately 25 million doses of S. enteritidis vaccine are used annually in U.S. poultry, while 50 to 75 million doses are used worldwide.

Bobcat Excavators

Dig deeper faster.

Multi-function hydraulics. No wonder Bobcat excavators have the best cycle times in their class. Swing the house, raise the boom, extend the dipper, dump the bucket — all at once!

And when you hook up with a wide variety of Bobcat attachments, these rugged excavators do a lot more than dig. Choose from ten models — ten easy solutions to hard work.

Everlast Roofing, Inc. Metal Roofing & Siding

The Ultimate G-100 Process "The Best"

- 1 Valspar 10S Finish Coat
- 2 Epoxy Primer
- 3 Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
- 4 G-100 Zinc Coating
- 5 Full Hard Steel (80,000 min yield)
- 6 Heat formed, less paint cracks

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

- 1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
- 2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
- 3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
- 4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
- 5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
- 6 Heat formed Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
- 7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
- 8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53.37 Per Square $1.69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$48.32 PER SQUARE
$1.53 PER LINEAL FT.

Everlast II is better:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder
- won't bend or buckle as easily, stronger design
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible
- nails/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint
- still priced about the same or less
- picked up or deliver from Lebanon plant

Everlast II is excellent for houses and barns
Standing seam is ideal for houses

Everlast fits tighter.

Screws and nails fit tighter on Everlast II metal roofing and siding ribs. Less risk of leaking. Laps are virtually invisible. No other manufacturer's metal seals so well with nails.

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

- High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
- Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems

- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates

- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

Northumberland County

This is two farms by same owner which can be sold separately The one farm of 132 acres is a modern dairy with 153 free stalls and a double 8 DeLaval milking parlor. There is room for expansion This farm is level and very fertile. They have not needed commercial fertilizer for at least 7 years.

The other farm is presently quarter horses, and this land is identical to farm #1. This one has 113 acres with most of it tillable. The residence is unique, having been built in 1803, and #1 was built in 1830. Both have 5 bedrooms and modern baths There is a 24' by 80' silo on each, as well as many other pluses The second would make a beautiful beef farm or make a dairy here as well. Priced separately or both together as a package deal. Call today.

Central Northumberland Co. 71 acre Amish equipped dairy farm The setting is ideal, excellent soils, beautiful 3 bedroom farm house w/modern kitchen, Parquet oak floors and lots of excellent living area. There is a large horse barn, milk stable, implement shed and much more. Let me give you a private tour. You can have settlement now to honor your tax deferred exchange with possession at a later date I'll handle those details for you. It won't last long - it's priced right.

Bradford County, 2 New Opportunities

I have just listed a large modern dairy with lots of ground. There is multiple housing, great location and the possibility for you to buy a turnkey operation also is a plus. Could be rather quick possession or let's do an IRC 1031 Tax Deferred Exchange and keep your investment intact from the sale of your present property.

Opportunity #2: Over 100 acres of good farmland with bordering woodland and wooded patches rich in game and the elevation for building a hunting lodge or permanent residence surrounded by the farmland and neighboring tracts of woodland makes this a great place for retirement also. Big rack deer, bear and lots of turkey abound. Priced right. It should sell quickly. Call me for a private showing.
